Sinkings Are Attributed To German Mines

By WALLACE CARROLL
British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Nov. 20. — Naval authorities charged today that Germany's "unrestricted sea warfare" had sunk 14 ships in the past nine days, including nine that went down with apparent loss of almost 200 livvs over the weekend.

Four British merchant vessels and five neutral ships went to the bottom and several others were damaged but reached port safely, over the weekend. Most of the sinkings were in the North Sea, off the English coast and were attributed to German mines although in Berlin the Nazis denied that their mines could have been responsible.

The sea losses were perhaps the greatest since the start of the war in a comparable period and the sinking of the Netherlands' liner Simon Bolivar with probable loss of 150 lives appeared to be the greatest commercial sea disaster of the conflict.

The British admiralty—on the eve of the 21st anniversary of the surrender of the German World War fleet to Britain—charged that the Nazis were placing free mines in the North Sea in violation of international law.

The sinkings listed for the weekend were:

Ship	Probable Loss of Life
BRITISH collier Torchbearer (1,267 tons)	2
BRITISH Pensilva (4,258) (all landed safely)
BRITISH trawler Wigmore (345)	16
SWEDISH steamer B. O. Borjesson (1,586)	7
ITALIAN steamer Grazia (5,875)	5
LITHUANIAN steamer Kaunas (1,321)	1
JUGOSLAVIAN steamer Carica Milica (6,570)	0
DUTCH liner Simon Bolivar (8,209)	150
British steamer Blackhill (2,494)	0

MINES RESPONSIBLE

There were some naval reports that several of the ships were torpedoed but it was generally believed that mines were responsible for most of the sinkings. The Torchbearer, the Pensilva, the Wigmore, the Simon Bolivar, the Grazia all went down in a small area off the east coast of England.

Eleven members of the crew of the Torchbearer were landed, it was announced later. Six were taken to hospitals. Two were still missing.

SET DELIBERATELY

Naval authorities insisted that the mines were German, because they said, British mines are so equipped that they are harmless after they break from their moorings. A week-end gale apparently had scattered German mines, driving them in on the British isles and the Danish and Belgian coasts, but British authorities said the mines in the shipping lanes were set deliberately, probably by German submarines and had not just drifted there.

In Hamburg, the newspaper Hamburger Tageblatt carried an article by A. Muerer, retired German vice-admiral, suggesting that

RUSH ORDERS ARE PLACED FOR MINESWEEPERS

British United Press

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Germany's resort to unrestricted sea warfare has resulted in the rushing of orders for new minesweepers in Canada.

Officials said in Ottawa today that new contracts for the sweepers were being drawn up and sent to Canadian shipyards with the least possible delay. In all, approximately 20 minesweepers will be built, 20 of them under order of the Dominion government and 10 by the British government.

Cost of each vessel was estimated at approximately $400,000.

Nazi Spies Accused Of Theft U.S. Information

DETROIT, Nov. 20—Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the United States congressional committee investigating subversive and un-American activities, said in an interview here today that Nazi and Communist agents "Now across the ocean" had "stolen important information" of military value from Detroit industrial plants.

The primary purpose of his committee now, he asserted, was to break up foreign spying and to prevent sabotage in industrial plants.

"This information is now back in Germany," he said.

"Dies said much information was obtained from Communist party members disgruntled after the German-Russian alliance was announced. He added:

"I intend to talk to approximately 10 of these informants today, secretly. Of course, I can't reveal their names. But I can say that four or five of them are also members of labor unions."

Today's War Analysis

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
British United Press Cable Editor

GERMANY'S attack on allied and neutral shipping has become more than just a phase of the "war of nerves". It is a separate and important war front.

Extension of the submarine campaign by the unlimited use of deadly mines in the shipping lanes is a practical, destructive form of warfare designed to inflict heavy material damage, to the great advantage of Germany.

An alarming increase in ship sinkings over the week-end has brought a charge from the British that the Germans are disregarding international law and indiscriminately sowing mines in shipping lanes without the requisite notification.

The British also charge that the

FLOODS STALL OPERATIONS ON WESTERN FRONT

Germans Forced To Abandon Number Of Inundated Positions

By AXEL DE HOLSTEIN
Havas Staff Writer

PARIS, Nov. 20—Flood waters stalled overland war operations along the length of the western front today, forcing the Germans to abandon a number of inundated positions on their side of the Rhine.

An artillery exchange started in the zone south of Saarbruecken by the Germans was one of the day's few features.

Air operations were equally reduced, but German fliers continued their long-range scouting flights—all at high altitude—over east and southeastern France.

Air raid alarms were sounded along the Rhone Valley and in Normandy. At Lyon, in the Rhone Valley, the alarm lasted from 9:35 to 10:20 a.m. At Rouen, Normandy, the alarm was given at 10:25 a.m. The "All clear" followed at 11:11 a.m.

The sharp brake placed on military operations by flood waters was reflected in today's early communique which said there was "nothing to report during the night."

French military sources asserted that the rising waters of the Rhine had caused greater damage on the less-protected German side of the river. Abandoning some positions, German troops were reported raising dikes and attempting to pump out a number of flooded blockhouses.

In Alsace, the Lauter river was at flood crest. In Lorraine, the Blies and Saar were swollen by waters from the many streams crossing the mountainous and wooded country which marks the front.

A court of inquiry will be held, military authorities said. Flying Officer Anderson graduated from McGill University in 1924.

Canada Fears No Bombing Raids As Airmen Go Into Active Training: Goal Of 25,000 Fliers: Tourists Bidden

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Just returned from a flying trip to Canada, Devon Francis, aviation editor of The Associated Press, writes that the physical evidences of the state of war existing between the Dominion and Germany are so meagre that a visitor is surprised to encounter soldiery.

In the story of his experiences, written for the Associated Press, Francis told the United States that "Canada is worried lest the United States look too much on the Dominion as a nation at war." Having found nothing to worry the visitor, he told his fellow Americans about it. His story, in part, follows:

Much of Canada's preparation for war, of course, is hidden.

Volunteer troops are in training, but information on their numbers or disposition must be kept from the enemy.

Young men are learning to pilot combat planes, but the character and extent of their instruction must remain secret.

Canada does not fear invasion or bombing raids. No one so much as suggests that the locks of the little canal which courses through the heart of Ottawa, are in danger from enemy bombs.

But Canada does fear saboteurs —and Canada, winter vacation land, is worried lest the United States look too much on the Dominion as a nation at war.

Oil resources of Alberta, if efficiently developed, can mean as much for Canada as oil production has for the United States, R. A. Bonwn, prominent Calgary oil man, told the Kiwanis Club Monday noon.

"If the oil reserves of this great province are efficiently and orderly developed oil production can mean as much for the Dominion of Canada as it has for the United States of America.

Canadian Army to Be Supplied With Best of Equipment

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—When Canadian troops take their place in the line of battle they will be as well equipped as it is possible to make them and certainly as well equipped as the British forces.

This assurance came over the week-end from Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the first overseas division who has just returned from a coast-to-coast tour in which he visited every unit in the division.

Backing up General McNaughton's assertion on the point was a statement from Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of defence. The minister and the general held a joint press conference in Mr. Rogers' office.

For more than an hour they answered questions from 14 newspapermen.

DISPENSE WITH RED TAPE

The first overseas division is being readied for service without haste but with thoroughness and all possible despatch. Formalities and red tape are being dispensed with when it is necessary to get things done quickly.

The agreement covers the baking industry in the Edmonton zone, extending within a radius of 15 miles from the post office.

This agreement goes into effect on Dec. 10, and is for one year.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of K. Pugh of the Industrial Standards Board, with Mr. Simonds as secretary.

Horses Haul Planes Over Border Line From U.S.: Neutrality Law Forbids Machines Flying Across

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 20

These may not be horse-and-buggy days, but horses still play their part in world affairs—even to assisting in the delivery of airplanes to belligerents.

It happens this way:

A state department ruling forbids Americans from flying airplanes to belligerent nations, and likewise citizens of belligerents are forbidden to fly them from the United States.

Since early last summer, Great Falls has been the "jumping-off" place for airplanes bound for England from southern California factories.

In the past—with the exception of the period when the previous neutrality law forbade their export—planes halted at Great Falls for a final load of gas before flying to Lethbridge, Alberta.

Hereafter the planes will be landed at Sweet Grass, Mont., by their American pilots, and hauled by horse teams—three miles north across the border to Coutts, Alberta. There Canadian pilots will take them.

SWEETGRASS, Mont., Nov. 20 —Five United States built airplanes, en route to Canadian military forces, came down in a cow-pasture landing field of this small border community Sunday and were towed across the international boundary to a Canadian field.

The planes, built by a California factory, were the single-motored pursuit type.

They were flown here by way of Great Falls and pulled across the line in compliance with a United States state department order prohibiting American pilots to fly over territory of a belligerent or pilots of a belligerent to fly over United States soil.

Russians Lending Nazis U-Boats To Harass Pacific Ships

By M. S. HANDLERM
British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—A warning by the semi-official newspaper Le Temps that any German ship transferred to Russia still would be regarded as an enemy ship and subject to search and seizure by allied warships, raised a new source for conflict on the seas today.

The warning followed reports from Bergen, Norway, that Germany planned to trade several more of its new blockaded ships to Russia for submarines with which to prey on the Allies.

TOKYO, Nov. 20. — The newspaper Nichi Nichi's Rome correspondent today reported rumors circulating in Italy of a secret agreement under which Soviet Russia is ceding a number of submarines to Germany to be operated out of Vladivostok to harass British Pacific and Indian Ocean shipping.

The dispatch said Italian naval circles were following the situation with keenest interest, realizing such a development would make Italy mistress of the Mediterranean by compelling Britain to transfer much of its naval strength from that sea to the far and middle east.

Informed Fascist quarters viewed the rumors skeptically, the correspondent reported, in the belief it might be merely another Nazi propaganda manoeuvre to persuade Italy to join in an alliance with the Soviet.

SOVIET-JAPAN TRADE ACCORD IS DISCUSSED

Community Of Views Is Reported Sunday In Current Talks

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—Premier and Foreign Commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, and the Japanese Ambassador, Shigenor Togo, have "exchanged opinions on the fundamental principles upon which a Soviet-Japanese trade agreement must be based and have found a "community of views," a communique said today.

The announcement by Tass, Soviet news agency, said on agreement also had been reached on the "composition, functions and place of work" of a mixed commission to settle the boundary question between Soviet-led Outer Mongolia and Japan's puppet state of Manchukuo.

An agreement between Germany and Russia, signed Nov. 16, for repatriation of Russians, Ukrainians and White Russians in the German-occupied part of Poland, and of Germans from the Russian-occupied portion, was announced.

Informed sources said repatriation already is in progress and that about 115,000 Germans and nearly 1,000,000 others who wished to be transferred to Russia might be affected.

200 LIVES ARE LOST AS NINE VESSELS SUNK

Germany throw its naval surface craft against British convoys, to assist German airplanes and U-boats, "because it is no longer a battle but a ruthlessly conducted commercial war which has become the chief naval task."

SHIP LOSSES

The ship losses were given as follows:

For the week ending last Saturday, 11 British ships: Cresswell, 25 tons; Pinzano, 1,346 tons; Maira, 8,003 tons; Torchbearer, 1,267 tons; Wigmore, 345 tons. Since Saturday, the British Pensilva, 4,358 tons.

Neutrals lost in the week ending Saturday: Norwegian tanker Arne Kjode, 11,900 tons; the Italian and Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar, of which 159 of the passengers and crew were still missing; the Jugo-Slav steamer Carica Milica, 6,370 tons. Since Saturday, the losses were the Swedish Borgesee, 1,586 tons; the Brazil, Brazil, 5,875 tons.

(This list did not include the Lithuanian steamer Kaunas, 1,321 tons, sunk by a mine with loss of one life.)

TWO DAMAGED

In addition to those sunk, it was announced that two small British vessels, unnamed, had been damaged by mines off the east coast.

Total merchant shipping lost during the war was now 121 ships, totalling 466,000 tons, of which the allies lost 69 ships of 315,849 tons; the Germans eight ships of 38,880 tons; neutral countries, 44 ships totalling 131,860 tons.

It was announced today that 11 more members of the Italian liner Grazia had been landed at a southeast British port, making a total number of survivors 26. The mine explosion had killed five of the Grazia's crew outright and several more were believed missing.

British authorities believed the plague of mines meant that the U-boats have been having such a lean time raiding shipping that they had resorted to dumping mines indiscriminately.

SERVICE CANCELLED

Word of the Belgian loss came simultaneously with a report from Brussels that channel service between Belgium and Britain had been cancelled for the present.

An informed source said that five of the sinkings occurred at about the same place, 20-odd miles off the British east coast, indicating the possibility of an extensive mine field in shipping lanes used by British and neutral shipping.

WORST DISASTER

The Grazia was the first Italian merchantmen to become a war casualty. The Simon Bolivar disaster was the worst to civilian shipping since the war started, unless the death list of 140 is reduced in the final survey. The highest previous loss was 112 persons killed in the sinking of the Montreal-bound liner Athenia Sept. 3.

The press announced the weekend losses in angry headlines such as "Nazi murder mines sink five more ships."

Indignation mounted as poignant episodes of the Bolivar sinking —mothers struggling to save children, passengers saved only to be flung back into the oil sea by a second explosion—were told by the wretched survivors.

The Daily Express said: "Humanity owes nothing to German leaders who sink ships bearing infants in arms and little children. When Germany is defeated these villains should be destroyed."

The News Chronicle said that by deliberate failure to observe international law and declare mined areas as danger zones, the Nazis "again show themselves enemies not merely of Britain but of all mankind."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

The Admiralty said a report the Clan Buchanan was in trouble was a "case of mistaken identity."

The Bolivar was steaming over the sea through a slight haze when there was a terrific explosion directly under the bridge where the captain, H. Vosnjakovitj died at his post. The liner's oil pipes burst and many passengers were smothered in their cabins.

While the boats were being lowered there was a second explosion and the ship sank rapidly. Some survivors said they believed the second explosion was a torpedo which smashed one of the lifeboats to splinters and killed every occupant, but the official explanation—fortified by the admiralty statement—stressed it was a mine disaster.

Loss of the Bolivar seemed to give sinister confirmation to reports current in London and Paris during the last week that Germany despaired of the efficacy of her U-boat campaign against British shipping, intended to accelerate planting of clandestine mines on the shipping routes close to the British Isles.

One British subject was among the eight identified dead, and 32 British subjects were among the missing.

Of the survivors, 182 were brought to London. 14 taken to Dover, 49 to Harwich. Among them were 48 Britons, 150 Netherlanders and a number of Germans, Swiss, Spaniards, Norwegians and Colombians.

PEOPLE SMOTHERED

"Oil pipes burst, people in cabins were smothered," said a middle-aged survivor in a smashed boat, as he stepped off a train bringing him to London.

"Some of us who couldn't get into boats slid or jumped into the water.

A barefoot, shirtless British bank clerk in dungarees added, "some others, though, just stayed. They just stood on deck and watched us go. Maybe they didn't get off."

Despite the heavy loss of life, survivors said the Simon Bolivar sank in water so shallow her funnels were still showing after two explosions sent the craft to the bottom.

"It was just like hell," said a young Hollander, wrapped in a white blanket. "The first explosions blew me down three decks. I saw people blasted dead just like knocking down nine pins."

"You couldn't get into the starboard boats because they were crowded so full and they couldn't let the port boats down," said S. G. Preece, a Briton returning to Trinidad.

"I took my little girl in my arms and we slid off into the water. I found a box and turned it up and it made sort of a punt. We were in the water about an hour. There were about 80 people in the water, all black with oil."

LONDON, Nov. 20—Naval circles today stated that all members of the crew of the steamship Carica Milica, which went down after hitting a mine in the North Sea, had been landed safely in England. No names being available, the authorities could not say whether Douglas Brown, 22, of Vancouver, was a member of the crew, as believed by Brown's family in Canada.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 20 — The British and German versions of the Simon Bolivar sinking Saturday were published side by side without comment today by the Dutch press.

Oil Fields

people approximately one million lire on the oil industry.

"In that same state oil and its products contributed 64% of all the taxes levied in 1937. In other words out of a levy of 108 million dollars the oil industry contributed 70 million dollars. Now, if you can build this industry up to stand a 70 million dollar tax your bonded debt of 150 million dollars will not look so big.

MAJOR PROBLEMS

"We are faced with but two major problems. First, the finding of large oil reserves, and second, the construction of a pipeline to convey our oil to market which can purchase it in quantities commensurate with our ability to supply.

"Our first duty should be to supply our own nation's needs, and it does seem most improbable, that as soon as sufficient reserves are established, a country importing approximately 70 million dollars worth of petroleum products per year is going to let its own oil remain unsold.

"Therefore, I say our problem is finding the reserves. The matter of a pipeline, when justified by sufficient oil reserves to make the construction of the line economically possible, can be realized and the finding of the money will not be difficult," Mr. Brown declared.

Today's War

Germans are not using the required safety devices which make a mine harmless if it goes adrift. The Germans deny the charge, but mines are blowing up ships close to the English coast and in other unexpected places, where uncharted British mines would not likely be.

If the unrestricted use of loose mines is ascribed out to its logical conclusion, the English channel, Straits of Dover and the North Sea would soon be unnavigable, except at prohibitive risk.

Such a campaign would have a three-fold purpose; to sabotage the British merchant marine; to cut off supplies from Britain and set up a counterpart of the British blockade of Germany to force neutral ships to steer clear of British waters and trade with Germany.

MINE CORDON

If Germany has enough long-range mine-laying submarines—it is not certain that her strength in that respect—considerable havoc could be wrought in the Irish Sea, creating in effect a sort of mine cordon around England and Scotland.

Losses of shipping by submarine torpedoing have not been as great as was expected, indicating that the Allies perhaps have the submarine situation reasonably under control.

The menace of mines would have to be met by a doubling of sea patrol. Big fleets of mine sweepers would be sent out to keep the shipping lanes clear. The sowing of British mines at submarine depth to trap mine layers would have to be intensified.

Mine warfare on a large scale is not a new development. It played an important part in the world war. Eventually the Allies—with considerable aid from the United States after its entry into the war—outmined the Germans.

So the submarine and mine campaign failed; but the British have not forgotten how nearly it succeeded. The lessons of the World War will be put into use, with improvements in technique made possible by the lapse of nearly a quarter of a century.

FORMER KAISER ENDANGERED AS TREES UPROOTED

DOORN, The Netherlands, Nov. 20—The staff of former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany was alarmed today when a sudden windstorm uprooted three large trees in the garden of Doorn Castle.

The 80-year-old former kaiser, walking with an official, was only 50 yards from where the trees fell, having just passed the spot.

He returned to the castle in a highly nervous state.

The storm caused damage to small Netherlands shipping yesterday. Seven seamen lost their lives.

The kaiser sent a message of condolence to Queen Wilhelmina over the sinking of The Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar Saturday off the British coast.

Prague

called off a threatened strike. Czech police were sent to factories to warn the workers it would be unwise thus to protest the shooting of nine student-patriots and three German Czechs.

RESENTMENT GROWS

But under the tight control imposed on the protectorate, growing resentment of the Nazi domination was apparent, and Slav spokesmen outside the Nazi zone of rule took up the cause of patriots killed for demonstrating at the funeral of a student killed on the anniversary of the founding of the Czech republic.

In London the former republic's president, Eduard Benes, predicted it would be only "a short time" before the Czechs' nation again "will be free politically and nationally."

COMMON ACTION

There, too, Benes and Premier Wladyslaw Sirski of Czecho-Slovakia's neighbor, Poland, buried past differences and agreed to common action against the German trespassers on the Slavs' historic living space.

The British press predicted the week-end Czech disorders would be repeated in Poland, now occupied by Germany and Russia.

Indicative of the impact of European Slavs of the Prague executions, reports from Belgrade told of sympathetic demonstrations by Serb students last week.

From the welter of reports coming from points on the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate border, reasons for the growing antagonism toward the German rule may be sifted.

RUSSIA DISAPPEARS

This time Russia has disappeared from the scene as champion of the Pan-Slav ideal. Leaders of the subjugated Slavic countries more and more turn to the allies, whose war aims encompass the restoration of their liberties.

Polish naval units are operating with the British navy, Legions of expatriate Czechs are enlisting with the allied forces in France. And if German resistance slackens under the allied siege, Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of Czecho-Slovakia, warns that his people will revolt.

Inclusion in the cryptic communique of the fact that two Czech police were among those killed by the Nazi Schutzstaffel had more significance than appeared on the surface.

Earlier Nazi reports from the protectorate said casually that Czech police were put in control of the student disorders, the implication being that the trouble was caused by a small, fanatic group of youths out of sympathy with the great body of their compatriots. The fact that the Czech police themselves had shown opposition toward the Nazis sufficient to warrant the death penalty, gave the lie to the implication.

Tientsin Faces Coal Shortage

TIENTSIN, Nov. 20.—The blockaded British concession, facing a growing coal shortage, will be without light, power and water within 10 days, authorities said today, unless the Japanese permit supplies to enter.

The present flow of supplies, it was said, is confined to a limited ration for hospitals and bakeries.

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 20.—Claude M. Hernraham's car broke down on his way to police court to answer a traffic summons. A passing motorist gave him a lift. When Hernraham's case was called he looked up to the bench and saw the man who had helped him—Judge Oliver Youngs. Judge Youngs fined him $9.

CANUCK ARMY TO HAVE BEST OF EQUIPMENT

the defence department since, General McNaughton, former chief of the general staff, knows personally every officer commanding a unit in the first division and quite a number of other officers.

So on his recent tour he was able to ask and get from them complete frankness in the discussion of their problems.

Two things impressed the general on his tour, the high quality of the men in the division and their seriousness.

HIGH CALIBRE PERSONNEL

"I can hardly conceive of a higher quality of personnel coming forward to serve in all capacities and in all grades," he said.

"The men are very serious. This is not like 1914 when men went more in the spirit of adventure rather than as a contribution to a great ethical cause."

"There is also a realization that this is no light task," said General McNaughton. "Everybody recognizes that we are going to need the whole of our resources and the whole of the resources of our great allies, the French."

NO OCCASION FOR HASTE

"At the same time there was no occasion for haste. Canada could take reasonable time to prepare its forces before they would have to endure trial by battle. For Canada this was most important because it maintained no large military establishment in peace.

"It is the ardent hope of Canadian soldiers as well as civilians that we may soon return to the work of organizing peace so as to prevent the eruptions of dictators," said the General.

EXPERIENCED FORCE

Getting down to a discussion of the division itself, General McNaughton said it was based directly on units in the active militia and so had the advantage of a large number of experienced and skilled officers and non-commissioned officers, many of whom had seen war service.

"In unit after unit I found every officer fully qualified," he said.

For specialists and technicians the division had drawn on Canadian industry. The technical knowledge and talent thus obtained could not have been created by the army itself in 10 years.

INDUSTRY CO-OPERATES

The supplying of the troops on short notice required a great effort from Canadian industry, said the minister. Industry had co-operated well.

"The picture we now have is reassuring in every respect," said Mr. Rogers. "Equipment is now moving forward rapidly."

Some mechanized equipment would be obtained in Canada and some in England, said Mr. Rogers. Certain special articles could not be turned out in quantity in Canada at once.

General McNaughton modestly confessed he would like to be an artillery man again.

Two Swedish Ships Seized By Germans

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 20 — Two Swedish freighters, the Oscar and the Torrel, were stopped by German naval vessels and taken into the Baltic Prussian port of Swinemunde, it was reported here Saturday. It was said neither vessel carried any cargo.

Youngest

The youngest member of any senior legislative body in Canada is Arnold McGrath, 27, Liberal candidate, who recently successfully contested the provincial riding of Cranbrook B.C. He replaces Hon. F. M. MacPherson, former minister of public works in the B.C. legislature, who recently resigned to accept a federal appointment.

GOOD TURNOUT AT POLLS FOR N. B. ELECTIONS

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Nov. 20—New Brunswick voters went to the polls today to elect this province's 49th legislature and the 18th since Confederation.

The polls opened at 5 a.m., M.S.T., and will close at 1 p.m. Contesting the 48 seats in 17 constituencies were 40 Liberals, 48 Conservatives, a Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate and an Independent Liberal—a total of 98 candidates.

Interest aroused by the brief campaign, particularly in its closing stages, was expected to result in a good turnout at the polls, although the election is being held later in the year than any previous provincial election.

In the last election, in the summer of 1935, Liberals polled 340,373 votes and Conservatives 229,689.

This time the Conservatives under F. C. Squires are seeking to defeat the government of Premier Dysart, who led the Liberals in 1935 when they won 43 seats against five for the Conservatives.

CANADA STILL VACATION LAND DESPITE WAR

residents will tell a visitor, "Oh, a few setbacks, yes, against saboteur, but Europe is a long way off and it would be sad if our being at war prevented citizens of the United States from coming up, just as they do in peace time."

LIKE TRAIN SERVICE

Air service into, and within Canada, like train service, ignores the state of war. Trans-Canada Air Lines, governmentowned, shuttles back and forth between the Pacific coast and Moncton, eastern terminus, on regular schedule, Canadian Colonial Airways, with some planes of Canadian registry, wings between Montreal and New York several times a day.

A few soldiers patrol St. Hubert airport at Montreal, coated against the late fall's 10-degree temperatures at night.

"I say," remarked a genial customs official with a touch of wistfulness as I validated my ticket for the return trip to New York by plane, "were you well treated here? I mean the war—we didn't give you too much trouble, now did we?" I agreed.

NEED PUBLICITY

"Then perhaps," he said, "you will say so when you get back to New York. The United States should know that."

It is war but it is not war.

"I tried to draw a taxi driver into a conversation about the war.

"Oh, the war," he exclaimed, recognizing it. "I've been reading about it. Will you be in town for the rugby game Saturday?"

At a club in Montreal a man in his 40's poured water into two fingers of Scotch.

"I suppose my two boys will enlist," he conceded. "This is war, again. But I am not laying awake nights thinking about it."

It is at the airport training centres that the visitor is confronted with the real preparations for the conflict. In 1914 First Britain asked Canada for foot soldiers. Today it is not foot soldiers but aviators.

At one airdrome I found aircraftsmen, young men enlisted to learn to care for warplanes, sharing barracks built for only half their number.

GETTING UNDER WAY

At the bachelor officers' quarters two pilots shared a room normally reserved for one.

"We are only getting under way," explained the commanding officer. "But we shall go along fast now."

The goal is 25,000 fliers a year. Canada is the centre of the empire air scheme and therefore the main power will be the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. If the war in the air is to determine the outcome of the war in general, Britain is determined to achieve air superiority.

KING ASSURES ENEMY ALIENS OF SYMPATHY

Promises Christian Social Council Rights To Be Protected

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a letter to the Christian Social Council of Canada Saturday assured the council of the sympathy and support of the Canadian government for the council's efforts to protect Canadian citizens of German origin in their civil rights.

Text of the prime minister's letter to Rev. C. E. Silcox, general secretary of the council, follows:

Dear Mr. Silcox:

I wish to acknowledge the letter which you addressed to me Nov. 8 on behalf of the executive of the Christian Social Council of Canada in which you directed my attention to the interest of the Christian Social Council in "the protection of Canadian citizens of German origin in their civil rights, and their claim to the full privileges of our citizenship and fellowship, and the further protection of those refugees to whom Canada has granted sanctuary but whose technical status is yet that of enemy aliens."

APPLIES TO ALL

The kind reference to what I said in the House of Commons on Sept. 8, regarding the Canadians of German origin and descent is much appreciated. Although what I said then had particular reference to the people of Waterloo county, among whom I spent my childhood, and where I have still a host of friends, it was intended to have general application to the thousands of Canadians, who, though they or their forbears came from Germany, are today not less devoted to Canada, than their fellow-Canadians of English or French stock.

Canada is today engaged in a struggle for freedom. By freedom we mean, above all else, the right of ordinary men and women, so long as they respect the freedom of others, to live their lives in their own way without the fear of oppression or the menace of tyranny.

The persecution of our fellow-Canadians, or, indeed, any discrimination against them, because of their German blood or German speech would be a betrayal of the very cause we are fighting to uphold. It would be a threat to its unity in freedom which is the most precious quality of the Canadian people.

APPEALS TO HUMANITY

The desire to protect the refugees to whom Canada has given sanctuary will, I am sure, enlist the sympathy of every true Canadian. These unfortunate people, already the victims of those forces of evil against which we are struggling, should appeal to the chivalry and common humanity of our people.

In their generous endeavor to maintain the spirit of mutual tolerance and the respect for fundamental human rights, which are the foundation of the national unity of Canada, I should like, on behalf of my colleagues and myself, to assure the executive of the Christian Social Council of Canada of the sympathy and support of the government.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed)
W. L. MACKENZIE KING.

48 Cases Where U.S. Ships Stopped By Belligerents

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 — The state department today reported 46 cases in which belligerents detained United States ships for examination of papers or cargo since the outbreak of war.

Of the total detentions, Great Britain was responsible for 33, France for 10, Germany for four and an unidentified vessel for one.

The report included information received between Sept. 1 and Nov. 17. Forty-four ships were detained, but four of these were stopped twice.

POLICEMAN IS HERO OF FOUR I.R.A. BOMBINGS

Carries Unexploded Bomb Away From Point Of Discovery

LONDON, Nov. 20—A police constable was revealed last night as hero of Saturday night's four bombings in Piccadilly Circus, attributed by the authorities to outlawed Irish Republican Army members.

No one was injured in the blasts which did some damage to property.

Police Constable Laggett, attached to the Vine Street station, discovered one of the unexploded time bombs near a shop window in Park Lane. He carried it across the street and tossed it into Hyde Park, and a few minutes later it was doused in a pail of water.

Another bomb was rendered harmless by another police officer. Two others which failed to explode were found in Piccadilly after the explosions.

DUBLIN, Nov. 27—The government Sunday freed two alleged members of the Irish Republican Army who have been on hunger strike in prison in protest against their detention.

Both were removed to hospital. Two others were released last week.

FINLAND HAS RIGHT BORROW CASH FROM U.S.

HYDE PARK, N.Y., Nov. 20—Finland has a perfect right to borrow money from United States banks, President Roosevelt said on Friday, but he told reporters there was nothing to stories that the Baltic republic had stiffened her attitude toward Russia after obtaining promises of economic and financial aid from the United States.

No such help was promised, he said in response to questions.

Admonishing newsmen to check up on his memory, he added that the Finns sought a loan about two months ago for some specific purpose, perhaps for a railroad. They were referred to New York banks, he said. They have a perfect right to seek loans from the banks.

Plans to Quadruple Army In France Claimed Reason For British Preparedness

By YVES MORAN
Havas Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 20—A qualified source said Sunday plans to quadruple the 158,000 British effectives now in France are responsible for the elaborate supply and transport machinery set up by the British expeditionary force.

British officials since the beginning of the war have built brick by brick an organization capable of caring for four or five times the present number of Tommies along the Maginot line. The procedure was dictated by the following considerations, this source said:

1—Despite Britain's pre-war defensive preparations, she did not in September have an army answering the needs of a long and exhausting conflict. The general staff decided therefore to concentrate its first effort on establishing administrative and supply cadres in France, thus paving the way for the army still in the making.

2—Polish resistance to the German invasion, together with later Reichswehr hesitation, gave the British unexpected time to create an orderly groundwork for a vast future military installation.

Bases now being laid down far behind the lines are stocked with immense reserves of food, clothing and other supplies. They are tapped by railways which permit rapid movement of the goods to the front. Provisioning is further ensured by motor transport along carefully chosen and adopted highways.

Between the bases are depots, from which supplies could be rushed to the front lines by alternative highways if air-raids struck the main supply stations.

Mine-Laying is Called "Murder-Bloody Murder" By London Newspaper

LONDON, Nov. 20—The Daily Express, describing German mine-laying near British shores as "Murder—bloody murder," said today "It will not be long before the navy will find a remedy to Hitler's tactics."

"It isn't war at all, not even a new type of war," the Express said.

The Daily Telegraph said editorially the mine which sank the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar Saturday could only have been German, since the disaster occurred in waters which it is to Great Britain's interest to keep open to traffic.

GERMAN DENIALS

"As might be confidently expected," the editorial said, "Official Germany has been quick to deny the responsibility for an act which even they could hardly attempt to justify.

"Those denials are on the face of things utterly discredited by one single consideration. It isn't the authoritative assertion that there were no British mines laid in the neighborhood of the spot where the Simon Bolivar was struck. It is that to mine an established channel—and that without notification—for the very seaborne traffic which it is to British interest to encourage would be to contrive a self-inflicted injury.

"It would simply further the declared purpose of the German government to close the navigation of the North Sea to neutrals as well as to the enemy."

RESORTS TO FOUL MEANS

"Experience proclaims that Germany at war knows only one law—that which serves her own ends. If she can't prevail by fair means then she will resort to foul, sometimes unashamedly and at other times under the screen of attempts to lay her own guilt at other doors.

"The sinking of the Simon Bolivar is perhaps a foretaste of the terrible things with which Hitler has been threatening a world that is not prepared meekly to accept his will as supreme law."

GERMANS SAID WILLING TOOLS OF NAZI HEADS

Toronto Publisher Says Hitlerism Expression Of German Spirit

TORONTO, Nov. 20. — Those who say "we have no quarrel with the German people" are "completely ignoring their history," C. George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said last night in an address broadcast by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in the series "Canada at War."

"Hitlerism is but today's expression of the all-conquering spirit which defeated France in 1870 and encouraged France to try again in 1914," Mr. McCullagh said. "The present-day Nazi spirit is nothing more than the old Prussian imperial strategy of lightning conquest, with some violent additions to supply the added frenzy, and it is for such mad ambitions that generations of Germans have lived, fought and died.

"If we have marvelled at Hitler's uncanny ability to whip these people into a fighting fury, it is because we have not paused to consider that the spirit of invincibility has been bred into them for generations and has rendered them the willing tools of the present leaders."

The publisher quoted excerpts from the works of leading German writers to show "the real nature of the German people." At the same time, he said, "some of the finest citizens in Canada are those citizens of German extraction."

PILOT'S BODY BEING SENT TO REGINA HOME

Air Force Escort Follows Body Of Crash Victim To Ottawa Station

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—A Royal Canadian Air Force escort last night accompanied the body of Flying Officer G. P. Johnstone of Regina, killed Saturday when his training plane collided with another 3,000 feet in the air over Rockcliffe military airport, to the Union station where it was put on a train for his home city.

Flying Officer J. D. Morrison, also of Regina and pilot of the second plane, bailed out in his parachute to safety and suffered minor injuries in the crash which destroyed the two planes. A court-of inquiry will be held.

WITNESS SEES CRASH

An eye-witness of the accident said three planes were flying in formation. "All of a sudden they went into a loop after a dive and the second machine seemed to falter," he said. "The third craft swerved as if to avoid striking the machine ahead but clipped the wing off the plane. I could see the wing drift away in the wind as the plane spiralled down at terrific speed.

"I noticed one man bail out in his parachute and all the people around had a few anxious moments until we saw the chute open and the pilot's fall halted. The other pilot did not seem to have a chance to jump."

CRASHES IN FLAMES

The planes crashed in fields on opposite sides of the road leading from the main highway into the R.C.A.F. air station, Johnstone plane burst into flames and airport attendants who rushed to the scene were unable to get near it.

The accident was the first fatal one at the air station since Col. W. G. Barker, V.C., was killed about six years ago.

HANEY, B.C., Nov. 20—F. S. Kettlisen, who has completed half a century in the printing and publishing business in western Canada since starting as an apprentice printer in Calgary, has retired as publisher of the North Fraser Leader, a weekly he established here in 1931. The Leader has been purchased by the Gazette, another weekly.

Storerooms hold racks of ice pedoes. There are mines, dull looking spheres with their deadly charges of explosive. Rows of gleaming barrels of big guns and the smaller pom poms.

And guarding the entrance is the shorehome of ships, men and munitions is a simple looking chain of people on drums. It supports a submarine cable that would spell disaster to any underwater raider attempting to penetrate the harbor.

HITLER WOULD STRIKE AT U. S. IF VICTOR NOW

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Nov. 20—Senator Matthew M. Neely (Dem., West Virginia) in an address last night asserted that "if Hitler should win the present war he would within five years wage war against the United States.

"With our existent means of defence, we could not resist," Neely told a meeting.

He advocated prompt enlargement of the United States army and navy, particularly aerial and subaqueous instruments of defence.

A statue of Liberty, a present war would mean the British navy, and French army, the Dominion of Canada—our best friend neighbors—and the British West Indies, only a stone's throw from the Florida coast, would be under Hitler's control," Neely said.

Not So Heartless

Nova Scotia apple growers have decreed they will market no apples which are less than 2½ inches in diameter. The small ones are to be fed to cattle or pigs, or thrown into the rivers. Ontario and British Columbia growers are probably following similar rules in this year of plenty.

To prairie readers this doesn't make good reading; there are so many people in this area to whom an apple is—or would be—an apple. Suggestions have been made in a good many quarters that the unwanted apples should be distributed gratis among people who are not in position to buy.

But it isn't as heartless as it sounds. The trouble is that the little apples are too far from the people who would be glad to get them. And the bulk of them are not worth the freight. Small apples are usually the product of seedling trees, which nobody would care much about, or culls which have been stunted by insects or disease. The best thing to do with these orchard by-products is to feed them to stock; as prairie farmers do with low-grade grain.

Growling Again

The Russian bear is growling again. Moscow newspapers (under official instruction, no doubt) have broken out in a fresh tirade against Finland. The three million Finns, they claim with a characteristic disregard to absurdity, are working themselves into a dangerous frenzy against the hundred and sixty million Russians. They are likely, it is suggested, to launch cruel war on the harmless inhabitants of that vast country any day.

Matter may or may not have turned out as Finnish, but apparently Molotoff and Stalin are diligent students of his methods. This procedure of stirring up feeling against a small neighboring state is copied straight from the code adopted in preparing for the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

That the Finns have any desire to provoke hostilities with their giant neighbor is generally believed only on the supposition that they are fools, and there is nothing in their history to show they are. Their stubborn refusal to concede the Soviet demands is rather obviously associated with confidence that Stalin will not launch war on them. He has never yet made war on a country, and what he wants from Finland won't worth the cost.

Not Yet

Celebrations in Prague celebrated the anniversary of the Czech republic in demonstrations which naturally developed into violent riotous protests against the domination of the country by Nazi forces. Twelve were shot, not in street fighting, but by firing squads, a large number were arrested and will get such punishment as Goebbels and his gangsters decide, while Czech academies have been ordered closed for three years. The information comes from the official news agency at Berlin.

If the affair shows that the Czech spirit is not dead, it also demonstrates the folly of supposing the Czechs—or the Poles or the Austrians—can in the near future stage any successful or even serious revolt. These alien and unwilling subjects of the Reich have been disarmed, they are without organization, discipline, or a possibility of contacting the Allies from whom they might get help. Nor are the non-Nazi Germans in any better position to rebel.

The time will come when these anti-Hitler elements will be able to revolt effectively, but not until discontent has spread widely within the military ranks, or until outside pressure compels the weakening of the internal army of repression.

It Might Be Worse

The eleventh week of this comparatively warless war ended with the armies still watchfully waiting in their concrete caverns along the western front. On neither side are the commanders willing to take the initiative, since this means throwing multitudes of men against fortifications built to be impregnable. Only from a few unfortunately placed persons far from the scene comes impatient demands to know when the fighting is going to start. Any blood-thirstiness thus far disclosed varies in proportion to the distance of the commentators from the place where the spilling would take place.

What "might have been" are not always sad words. They are not sad in reference to inaction along the Rhine, the Moselle and the Saar. What "might have been" there—almost certainly would have been—is that a hundred thousand or five hundred thousand men who are now alive and well would be dead or wounded had the generally expected "grand offensive" been started. Whether they were Allied or German soldiers depending on which army attacked the man-traps prepared by the other.

The last war was called a war of attrition. Perhaps this is to be a war of disintegration; the armies standing on guard while each side waits for the economic strength of the other to crumble.

What Do With Surplus Wheat?

Next year four great laboratories will be in operation in the United States backed by the federal Government, employing 800 scientists and spending up to $1,000,000 a year each in attempts to find new industrial uses for surplus farm products. At least one large privately-owned laboratory is already engaged in the same quest, has been for some time, and reports very encouraging progress.

This leads the North West Grain Dealers' Association to suggest that the Government of Canada start research workers now on the job of finding new industrial uses for wheat. Wheat, it is pointed out, is the only crop that can be grown to advantage over a good part of the prairie country. Whenever the war ends, and however completely the present reserves disappear during the war, the problem of what to do with recurrent surplus yields will again arise. And it may take ten years of experimentation to discover what industrial use can profitably be made of the unmarketable grain—and the straw.

This looks like a water-tight case for starting immediately to investigate the possibilities. That there are uses, now unknown, to which wheat could be put to economic advantage can hardly be doubted by anyone who has read the story of nitrates, camphor, the soy bean, or rayon. Given a fork-load of straw or a bushel of wheat to start with, no one dare predict what a group of scientific researchers might make out of it.

The chance of success is certainly good enough to warrant "gambling" a substantial amount of money that they can make something that would be economically useful.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

The bending willow survives the storm that uproots giant oaks. Belgium, with knowledge of how speedily German need can turn a treaty into a "scrap of paper," has adopted the principle of the bending willow in a novel "Chinese Wall" she has erected to keep out German tanks.

NEW USE FOR LAWN ROLLERS

It is totally unlike the Maginot Line, or the pitfalls and obstructions that France and Germany have devised as protection against invading tanks. The Belgium anti-tank lines, resembles iron gates placed on top of rollers such as are used for rolling tennis courts. Each section can be wheeled by two men; a tractor can haul a long line of them. The sections are fastened together into long lines, anchored at each end by steel cables into bundles of street car rails, cemented into the ground.

Tests show that tanks find it impossible to climb over the flexible rollers. Instead, they become enmeshed in the line, in much the same way that Malay natives entrap tigers in their nets. Enmeshed in the line, the tanks become easy marks for artillery fire.

To the obvious suggestion that an enemy would first lay down an artillery barrage and blast a way for the tanks, the answer is made that artillery fire has little effect on the loosely held line of rollers. Even when shell fire blows a section sky-high, it invariably lands again right-side up in the place it formerly occupied. An additional advantage claimed for this mobile type of tank obstruction, is that the rollers can be hauled across any kind of terrain, to wherever they may be needed. If an attempt is made to drive a way through Belgium by some such lightning tank attack as proved successful in Poland, the Germans may find these loosely strung obstacles more difficult to attack than concrete defenses. In Namur, Liege and other strategic points in the Belgium defense system, these iron gates on lawn rollers stretch in both directions as far as the eye can reach. All of them are under the fire of guns, so cleverly camouflaged with fishnets covered with grass, that correspondent George Axelsson said he could not detect the camouflage at fifteen feet distance.

NETTING THE TIGERS

I've seen a 34-foot shark roll itself into helpless subjection in a salmon net. These tigers of the land may fare no better in the land nets than the tigers of the sea.

I've had opportunity to peruse the text of the White Book on Nazi atrocities. Truly it is a white record of dark deeds—all of them the subject of confidential Foreign Office reports made before the outbreak of war by British consular officials. The details out-horror the cabled advance reports of the press correspondents. No journalist has described with greater detail and forcefulness the attack upon the Cathedral Church of St. Stephen in Vienna in October, 1938, than did Mr. D. St. Claire Gainer, the British Consul-General in Vienna in his report to the British Foreign Office. Mr. Gainer, you may recall, was expelled from Germany in retaliation for the expulsion of the German consul at Liverpool who had hired a man named Murphy to steal the plans of a British munition plant.

WHITE BOOK OF DARK DEEDS

Some of the treatments meted out to Jews and members of the International Bible Students' body are too horrible for print—even for printing in the White Book. After reciting the systematic floggings administered on entering the camps, the victims, with feet strapped to foot plates being obliged to bend over a pole with their heads secured under two other poles, the official report says that on the first night in camp, prisoners were not allowed to visit the latrines to meet the calls of nature. They had to use their hats. The ensuing six lines of the report are omitted from the White Book as too horrible to print.

For wavering in line while standing at attention from 4:30 to 5:30 a.m. the punishment is 25 lashes. Some were beaten with birchs of barbed wire. A refined, sensitive man who moaned on receiving an affectionate letter from his wife was tied all day to a tree. The guards at night, thinking him dead, threw his body to the ground and jumped on it. The poor wretch, driven insane by torture, would wake and scream at night. So the two men ordered him were made responsible for keeping him quiet. If he screamed they were each given 25 lashes.

All of the punishments were of the utmost cruelty. Men were tied with their hands tightly behind their backs to a tree. For added punishment, some were tied so tightly that only their toes reached the ground. To the accompaniment of kicks on the ankles, they were forced to tiptoe around the tree.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Today is the 100th anniversary of a very important event in the history of Canada—the arrival at Toronto of Hon. Charles Poulett Thomson, who had been sent out as a conciliator to stave off the union of Lower and Upper Canada, of which he was to be the first governor-general. The envoy was greeted at Toronto by Sir George Arthur, the lieutenant-governor, who had followed Sir Francis Bond Head and who found himself in a most delicate situation. He was manifestly the Queen's representative in Upper Canada, but, opposed as he was to any concessions to the Reformers and to the proposed union, he soon had to confine his operations entirely to administrative affairs. Thomson, a man of energy and determination, "stood no nonsense." Many of his conferences with political leaders, and with Bishop Strachan, ended in discord, but the new governor-general had his way, and when the legislature of Upper Canada met on Dec. 3, it was Thomson, and not Arthur, who read the speech from the throne and who eventually secured from a reluctant legislature approval of the policy of union. More will be heard of his activities as the year progresses.

Preparing for Peace

The Citizens' Research Institute of Canada issues a good program of municipal effort in its general plan of preparing for peace while in the midst of war. Today, the Institute points out, unemployment is being relieved by enlistment and by war contracts. When the war is over these tendencies will be "reversed and accentuated," and it emphasizes the importance of a sound policy for dealing with a situation which may come upon us suddenly and unexpectedly.

This is the policy the Institute suggests for municipalities:

"That each municipal council in Canada place its financial affairs on a thoroughly sound basis so that it can play its full part in meeting post-war problems by

"(a) Issuing no debentures during the war except when absolutely unavoidable.

"(b) Postponing, so far as possible, all even necessary public works until after the close of the war.

"(c) Tightening up its control of current expenditure by improved accounting and budgeting procedure and by putting its staffs on a purely merit basis.

"(d) Appointing now a committee of aldermen, officials and qualified citizens to begin the planning of an after-the-war program of necessary works. This planning would consist not only of listing such work in order of their importance and urgency, but seeing that detailed engineering plans, cost data and methods of financing are completed so that when the signal comes that 'the war is over' another signal can be given 'full speed ahead.'"—Ottawa Journal.

Wood Products

Canada's recent export trade in wood products show a fine gain, when the figures for the first nine months of 1938 are compared with those for the same period in 1939. Lumber, shingles, veneers, ply-woods, saw-mill products, pulpwood, paper and manufactures of paper—all of them advanced in quantities shipped.

This means that Canadian forests are more than holding their own as an important source of Canadian revenue. Millions of dollars in investment, thousands of persons gaining their livelihood directly, and many hundred more through the trans-shipment of wood products; that is a happy state and must be thoroughly appreciated in many sections of this country.

There is little wonder, then, that both the federal and provincial governments exert themselves as far as their resources will permit to conserve and protect our forests. There is little wonder that the men and women responsible for this guardianship continually din into the ears of the general public the need for real caution when motoring through or hunting in forested areas. Our annual fire losses are tragic, and in not a few cases are preventable.

This question of the increase in Canada's export trade in wood products, then, should once more bring home the imperativeness of constant vigilance against fire damage to timber stands. Wood burned in a wild blaze that might not have happened is just so much taken out of somebody's pocket at some future date.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Sisters and Neighbors

It is to be hoped that the warmth of feeling towards Quebec which has been generated in Ontario by the election results will not too quickly evaporate. It would be a fine thing for Canada if it were to become permanent.

If such is to be the case, Ontario people will have to seek an understanding of the Quebec outlook, the Quebec viewpoint. It is in some respects different, for these people are chiefly of another race. Outside the great industrial centres they are perhaps not so modern as the inhabitants of Ontario; their minds and habits are more leisurelly than ours. They savor life slowly, and the hard practical Ontario man finds this difficult to understand. It does not occur to him that he, in his haste, may miss in life some of the things which he ought to be enjoying. It does not do to presume that Quebec has nothing to teach her sister province.

There is no reason why these two provinces should, so to speak, glare at each other, as they sometimes appear to do. They have many things in common, and each can learn something of value from the other.

So the kindly spirit which has been engendered by the election should not be permitted to evaporate. Let us have, by all means, an Ontario-Quebec axis, not directed against other provinces or against the federal authority, but for the cultivation of mutual friendship and good will, and for the successful prosecution of the great task which lies before the nation in this war.—Toronto Star.

Religion Day By Day

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

A PERSONAL CONFESSION

It took me seven years to win Milady; and there were others in the lines, in those days, when she would have none of me, that it seemed as if God had retired from business, and the heavens were brass. But in those long, long years of wooing and waiting, a Power beyond ourselves was doing something to both of us, making us fitter for the many years of happy life that have ensued.

It would be unfatherly weakness for God to give His children whatever they want whenever they want it. Both the recipient and the gift need time for fitness; how seldom are we really ready for the blessings we crave of Heaven! Whatever is really worth having in life is worth waiting for and working for.

God is never in a hurry; why, then, should we be so impetuous and undisciplined? His promises are sure, even though His schedule is not our calendar.

Lord, Thou hast been better to us than all our fears and hasty desires. We would learn to trust Thee to the limit. Amen.

Side Glances

"Now's the time to nail the boss for that raise, Ed—he's looking at snapshots of his baby."

Your Health — By Dr. Frank McCoy

Many thousands of people who are limping around with tired, aching feet are looking for relief.

Generally the most trouble is produced by weak arches and the strain coming from alien arches is often capable of producing a wide variety of aches and pains in the feet and legs.

There are several measures which may be used in banishing foot discomfort due to fallen arches, and today's article will be devoted to describing these measures for you.

Whenever the patient has flat feet, I recommend that special exercises be taken for the purpose of strengthening the muscles and tendons of the foot. The idea in taking exercises is to so improve the supporting structures that you will develop the necessary strength to keep the arches in place.

An excellent exercise which may be taken consists in walking "pigeon-toed" when taking your daily walk. Try walking with the toes pointed in, for at least every other block.

It is also a good plan to make sure that the shoes are properly fitted to your feet. If you have been in habit of wearing shoes with very stiff soles, change to those with softer soles, as the stiff soles will interfere with the normal play of the foot during action.

Many people wish to know whether they should use arch supports. When properly fitted they may be very useful for a time but they should not be used too long. It is sometimes amazing how suddenly the patient will get relief from his foot aches when he puts arch supports into the shoes. If you are able to secure the softer type of arch support, I believe you will get the best results.

When actual trouble with the arch has developed, some of the bones of the foot are likely to be out of place, and it is then usually very helpful to obtain a manipulative treatment of the foot. There are many doctors who understand just how such treatments should be given in order to put the bones back into place and relieve pressure. Sometimes the bones will be adjusted very quickly, with an immediate sense of relief. Most patients who have had foot treatments comment upon how good the feet feel afterward. The combination of a series of these foot manipulations and exercises will often do wonders for feet which have hurt for years.

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

This is the last of a series of six articles describing WEM, the individual bridge game. Today I want to warn you against some of the pitfalls of WEM.

If you bid nullo and do not take a trick, you score five points. A bid of nullo on two hands, with no tricks taken on either, would give you a score of 10 points. However, if you bid one on two hands, and make it once, your score is 11 points, one point more than the nullo bidder who has been successful on two hands.

If you are fourth hand and are low, it generally pays for you to underbid the bidding. For example, let us say that eight cards have been dealt to each person. The first bidder has bid three, the next one said the next two. If you bid for two tricks, you will balance the bidding. There will be eight tricks to win and eight tricks bid for.

When the bidding is balanced, generally each player will make his contract; if you are low, you will have gained nothing on the deal. If you bid one or three on this hand, thus throwing the bidding off balance, it will be impossible for every player to make his contract. If you make your bid, you will have picked up points on those who failed to make theirs, because you unbalanced the bidding.

There is one advantage in playing against the high player, or for the low one. If you make your contract, you receive your points and the other players lose those points to you. There is no additional premium for the winner of the game.

If you are in fourth position and are the high man, it will pay you to balance the score. Thus every one will try to make his exact contract, and you will have a better chance of exactly making yours. No one will be able to better their position against you more than a few points on the hand.

If you have a bid nullo, and see that you are going to be forced to take a trick, then take as many as you can in order to prevent your opponents from making their contract. Likewise if you see that you will not be able to make your contract, for example, if you have bid three, and you know that you can take only two tricks, you might as well try not to take any, thereby forcing someone else to take too many.

"No," I replied, "we did not find it very difficult." After some cogitation he spoke again:

RIMBEY FARMER HURT AS STRUCK BY HEAVY LOG

C. C. Weatherby, who lives 13 miles northeast of Rimbey, was seriously injured last week when an 800 pound log, which he was raising with a chain and team of horses for the erection of a barn, fell and struck him across the back. Mrs. Weatherby, who was assisting her husband, rushed to the home of R. Birchbold, about a quarter of a mile away, for help, and Mr. Weatherby was taken into the house.

Muddy roads prevented Dr. S. F. Carr of Rimbey from reaching the injured man, who was taken to the Bentley hospital the following morning. His condition is very serious.

Mr. Weatherby is in his late fifties and has been a resident of the Crystal Springs district for three years. He formerly lived at Alder Grove, British Columbia, and with Mrs. Weatherby and two children took up residence on what is known as the George Twiss farm, Rimbey, in 1936.

Rocky Mountain Residents Seek News From Kin

Residents here who came to Canada from Europe are trying desperately to get in touch with relatives. One man who came out from Poland after the last war, is worried about his parents and his teen age son. He has not heard a word since the first of August.

As no letters can go to an enemy country, citizens here with relatives in such territory are resigning themselves to wait until the war is over to hear what has happened to their kin.

There is a large settlement here of Finlanders, and they are anxiously watching every move from Russia. Most of them who were then of military age served in the last war, and their sons are enlisting in this one.

FOUR PERSONS BADLY BURNED IN EXPLOSION

Gasoline Explodes When Clothes Being Cleaned In Trochu Home

TROCHU, Nov. 20.—Four persons were seriously burned when an explosion of gasoline in the kitchen of their home nine miles east of Trochu Friday morning transformed their home into a flaming inferno.

The four are Sam Kaler; his wife, two daughters, Ella and Adeline. They were rushed to the Trochu hospital, and Saturday afternoon, a Calgary ambulance was called to take Mrs. Kaler and Adeline to a hospital in Calgary.

The girls and their mother were cleaning clothes with gasoline when the mixture exploded, they told Trochu hospital authorities. Ella made her escape with fairly severe burns. Mr. Kaler rushed into the house and brought out his wife and the other girl.

The house and all contents were completely destroyed, loss being placed at about $2,500. Some insurance was carried.

Investigating the blaze, a neighboring farmer, A. Kane, found all four and took them to his home, then rushing them by car to the Trochu hospital. Mr. Kaler and Ella are reported recovering.

CHAPLIN FACES FEDERAL CHARGE OF PLAGIARISM

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20—Charlie Chaplin, impeccably dressed and sober of mien, seemed anything but a comedian Saturday as he denied in federal court he purloined the plot for his last movie, "Modern Times," from a book written by Michael L. Kustoff.

Kustoff charges that the film star based the picture on the book, "Against Gray Walls," also known as "Lawyer's Dramatic Escapes."

"In a sense, 'Modern Times' was an original production," Chaplin told Judge Paul J. McCormick. However, the original idea was germinated in 1918 and in the interval from then until now, continued to flower and change."

B.C. PLANS TO TAKE ACTION ON COMBINES

Attorney-General Wismer Gives Instructions To Commerce Section

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20—Attorney General Gordon Wismer said Saturday he had instructed H. I. Bird, Vancouver solicitor, to prepare indictments against a number of persons allegedly involved in a British Columbia-prairie fruit-selling combine.

A recent report by F. A. McGregor, federal commissioner under the combines investigation act, found a combine existed in the marketing of Okanagan fruit and vegetables in the prairie provinces.

The attorney general said Mr. Bird had been instructed to study the McGregor report with a view to the nature of the proposed prosecutions and in regard to the province's jurisdiction in conducting prosecutions against companies and individuals outside British Columbia.

"While it will take some time to launch the prosecutions, they will not be delayed a day longer than is necessary," he added.

Mr. Bird acted for the federal government during the combine commission hearings.

The McGregor report, released on Nov. 8, said the control exercised by Western Grocers Limited and its subsidiary, Dominion Fruit Limited, over certain shipping agencies representing British Columbia fruit growers was in violation of the Combines Investigation Act.

U. S. TO WEIGH HEAVILY UPON PEACE BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, expressed belief Sunday the United States government would "probably weigh heavily in the balance of power after the war is over, especially if not drawn into the conflict."

In a broadcast with Dr. Maurice Sheehy, member of the Catholic University faculty, the Cardinal said:

"I hope that the government of the United States, in close relationship with the views of Pope Pius XII, who is universally esteemed, may be able to contribute in no small measure to restore a solid basis for international relations and a just and durable peace to the world."

He said he believed the "happy relationships" between Canada and United States exist because they are "not founded upon armaments of war but upon goodwill and mutual respect."

J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, in Regina on Saturday.

Breeders said war conditions threatened a serious slump in prices and they had asked the government to protect the industry.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—A Dominion government guarantee of any advances the chartered banks might make to fur breeders would be made through provisions of the Co-operative Agricultural Marketing Act passed at the last regular session of parliament, agriculture department officials said last night.

The Saskatchewan Fur Breeders Association reported in Regina that Hon. J. G. Gardiner, agriculture minister, had agreed on a Dominion government guarantee of a 50-per cent advance on the value of all silver fox and mink furs produced in Canada.

Department officials said they had no official confirmation of the agreement pending return of Mr. Gardiner to the capital, but added that negotiations had been proceeding for some time with the fur breeding associations for Dominion aid in marketing Canada's furs.

Wartime conditions have effected a decline in prices, aided by reports of heavy liquidation of stocks in Norway, one of the centres of world supplies.

BLOCKADE SAID TO BE ECONOMIC 'MAGINOT LINE'

ROME, Nov. 20.—"An economic Maginot line" was the Corriere Della Serra's description today of the Franco-British economic accord reached at London Friday.

Other Italian newspapers echoed the Corriere's assertion the accord is "an undeniable factor of strength for the allies" and pointed out it is a diminishing demonstration of the complete solidarity between the two powers.

The London accord," the Regime Fascista said, "is a new manifestation of the decision of both allied governments to fight the war in every closer unison."

The Italian radio today issued a new and sharp warning that any Russian penetration into the Balkans would run into "an immediate Italian reaction."

Premier Mussolini told the supreme commission for autarchy Saturday that the war has "already become a total war from the economic standpoint" and that if it had not been for Italy's attitude all the nations of Europe would be involved in armed conflict.

Eva Newton And Frank Crummy Exchange Marriage Vows At Saturday Evening Ceremony

ST. JOSEPH'S CATHEDRAL RECTORY was the scene of a quiet but very pretty ceremony at the hour of half past 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, when Eva Mae Newton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Newton of Edmonton and Namao, became the bride of Frank Gray Crummy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crummy of Grande Prairie.

The ceremony was performed by Father Leo Green.

Interest of many friends in university and teaching circles is centred in the marriage, for the bride, a graduate of the University of Alberta in 1933, has been teaching in the city for the past few years. She is a member of the Edmonton Home Economics Association.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a smart afternoon frock of Regina blue with accessories to contrast in vintage wine. Her hat, a halo model, was trimmed with a short veil and she carried for her flowers a colonial arrangement of roses and harmonizing blossoms. She wore as her only ornament a locket, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Merran Drew, a childhood friend of the bride who graduated from the University at the same time as did the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a frock of black velvet with hat and accessories to match. Her flowers were pink roses worn on corsage at her shoulder.

Mr. Jack Crummy, of Peace River, a cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception to immediate friends and relatives was arranged in the Jasper room of the Macdonald hotel. The supper table was set with flowers and tall tapers, and the bride's cake was placed on a separate table.

Mrs. Newton wore for the marriage of her daughter an informal frock of burgundy trimmed with touches of turquoise. Her hat was of turquoise and her other accessories in black. She wore talisman roses en corsage at her shoulder.

Mrs. Crummy, mother of the bridegroom, was frocked in black crepe, with colored embroidery. Her accessories were black and her corsage of red roses.

Father Green proposed the toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Crummy have taken a house in the city and will be at home shortly to their friends at their residence, 9743 111 street.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pepper, while Mr. Smith is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, also of Edmonton.

Attending the bride as matron of honor, Mrs. Charles Brownfield wore a becoming green frock with trimming of gold. She wore a small model hat in black and corsage of red roses.

Mr. Charles Brownfield was best man.

Reception to immediate relatives followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. MISS TENNANT SPEAKS AT W.M.S. MEETING

Address on the Madras conference by Miss Violet Tennant was an interesting feature of a thank-offering meeting of Strathcona Presbyterian church recently. Miss Tennant was one of the delegates chosen to represent Canada.

Three members of the Mission Band and also the Loyal Temperance Legion, dressed in native costumes, sang very sweetly at the meeting, and Miss Carol Norquay, a pupil of Mrs. Pimlott, gave an interesting reading. Miss June Irving was accompanist for the afternoon.

Tea was served later and Mrs. George Scott presided at the tea urns.

ANNIVERSARY GIFT

Each wedding anniversary, according to long established custom, calls for a particular type of gift. The first year is paper anniversary. Playing cards are appropriate, useful. Musical Club Members Hear Works Of Women Composers At Saturday Recital

EXAMPLES of vocal solo, choral and piano works by women composers were featured at the regular meeting of the Women's Musical Club, held Saturday at the Masonic Temple. From the impressive volume of compositions by women of many nationalities, representative works in the forms chosen for inclusion on the program were selected.

Mrs. Ernest Meaden, president of the club, announced that the next meeting would be on December 2, when a Hammond organ recital will be held and then there will be a long interval until the next meeting —the first in 1940—will be held on January 21, the "guest artist" program.

BRIEF SKETCH

Saturday's tribute to women composers opened with a brief sketch of some leading women composers, coupled with a plea to open the door to more of their works as that they might become better known.

Mrs. O. J. Walker stressed the value of pioneer work done by Clara Schumann, who however, submerged herself in the greater work of her husband. She dealt sketchily with Cecile Chaminade. Mrs. H. H. A. Beach and mentioned all those whose works were on the program to follow.

Canadian women composers, such as Gena Branscombe, Laura Lemon and Mrs. Ethel Norbury, of this city were not represented, although Mrs. Walker, in her talk, mentioned Mrs. Norbury.

Opening the program was Helen Trimble, contralto, who sang Florence Aylward's Love's Coronation; Teresa Del Riego's There's a Land of Roses; Cheminade's The Silver Ring, and Alicia Adelaide Needham's Little 'Orphant' Annie. Painstaking attention to detail and meticulous regard for enunciation were features of Miss Trimble's work, which reached a peak in the Chaminade number.

Eileen Farrell, pianist, played Dorothy Howell's Prelude; Ethel Leginska's Dance of the Puppet and Chaminade's Autumn. In all she displayed imagination and no little technical fluency, the combination providing an artistic result highly pleasing.

BARITONE

Frank Williams, baritone, gave three well-selected numbers in Amy Woodforte-Finden's Less Than Dust; Mana Zucca's Big Brown Bear, and the same composer's I Love Life. Mr. Williams's robust voice was replete with the joy of living in his performance of the last-mentioned which was sung first in the group. The dramatic force of Less than Dust and the "woof" of Big Bear in the other number were admirably brought out.

Eleanor MacPhee, soprano, rose to a high artistic peak and her contribution of four songs will stand out as unsurpassed among Musical Club programs to date this season. She sang Liza Lehmann's If No One Ever Marries Me; Katie Moss' Floral Dance; Joan Trevaini's My Treasure and Lehmann's Coo Coo. The soloist displayed a pure, limpid voice, fresh, clear and spontaneous in its colorature. She proved that deep study had been given to all and her work throughout was that of a sincere artist of genuine talent.

Under G. A. Kevan, the Ladies' Choir of Robertson United church sang Pearl Curran's Nursery Rhymes and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach's The Blue Bell, both being given with a fine balance and blend of tone color and a true regard to the portent of the music.

Mary Drummond Hallen, Mrs. G. A. Kevan, Mrs. F. Barber-Smith and Henry Atack were the accomplished accompanists of the afternoon. —J. O.

Gaynor Maddox Solves Some Nutty Problems

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Shopping for nuts may bring up one question: "Is it better to buy nuts in the shell or out?" There's no one answer. It depends. Nuts in the shell are somewhat cheaper per pound and not so likely to get contaminated.

On the other hand, nuts already shelled save the time and labor it takes to get them out of the shell, and they take up less room in the storage cupboard.

In most recipes, the amount of nuts called for is expressed in terms of the shelled kernels. For that reason, when buying unshelled nuts for a particular recipe, it is useful to know how much they will weigh and measure after they are shelled. That information worked out approximately for six popular nuts follows:

Almonds: for 1 pound or 3½ cups shelled kernels it takes about 3¼ pounds unshelled almonds. Filberts: for 1 pound or 3½ cups shelled kernels, it takes about 2¼ pounds of unshelled filberts. Peanuts: for 1 pound or 3½ cups of shelled kernels it takes about 1½ pounds of peanuts in the shell. Pecans: for 1 pound or 3½ cups shelled pecans it takes about 2¼ pounds of pecans in the shell. English Walnuts: for 1 pound or 4 cups of halved English walnuts it takes about 2½ pounds of unshelled nuts. Black Walnuts: for 1 pound or 3 cups finely cut kernels it takes about 5½ pounds of nuts in the shell.

NUTS MUST BE FRESH, CRISP

Greatest of all nut virtues are freshness and crispness. Most nuts are rich in fat, and if this becomes rancid, the nuts have a disagreeable flavor. To prevent this, it's a good idea to buy nuts in fairly small quantities and to use them quickly. Keep them in an airtight container in a cool, dry, dark place.

Although nuts are practically made to order for kitchen use, there is one precaution no cook should overlook. Be sure every bit of shell is separated from the nut meats. To bite into a piece of cake or candy and come upon a stray bit of shell definitely comes under the head of unpleasant surprises.

Nuts are often added to vary favorite recipes for breads, muffins, cakes, biscuits, candy or cooking. There need be no change in the other ingredients. Use from ¼ to ½ cup of nuts to each cup of flour.

In concoctions that have to be cooked for any length of time most cooks prefer nuts with a pronounced flavor. Nuts with distinctive flavors are also good in ice cream. Black walnuts and pistachio nuts are often added. About ½ cup of nuts to a quart ice cream mixture is a good proportion.

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Black bean soup, hard crust bread, chicory and grapefruit salad, apple brown Betty, tea, cocoa.

PRETTY PRINCESS
With Flattering Lines

2943
SIZES
12 — 40

Princess lines are becoming to all types of figures. For face and figure flattery choose this appealing new frock. Soft fullness is placed just where it is needed most and where it gives the smartest touch. The long, slim panel tends to make the figure appear straighter and younger. Velvet is a lovely choice if you intend to wear this dress for best, but silk crepe is wise for a frock that will be worn to town or to the office.

If you like, buttons trim the front panel to just below the waistline and a tie-belt makes a slight bow in the back.

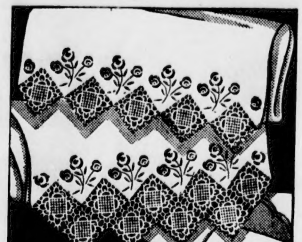

Style No. 2943 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

Send 15c for pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size you wish. Address Pattern Dept. The Edmonton Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

Art of Letter Writing Is Easily Learned

Use Friendly Expressions

Some people write such charming letters! How do they do it, you wonder, as you struggle for hours over a note—and then turn out one that's cold as ice!

Charming letters, you'll find, are full of friendly expressions, little touches—but all these tricks you can easily learn.

To make your invitations sound cordial, spontaneous, just change that stiff "hope you'll attend" to "do come!"

Do you write a trite "congratulations" to the fellow club-member who's won a fine job? Write instead "I am so happy to hear—" and sound natural, sincere!

And how much more flattering are your letters to friends if you don't harp always on "me, myself and mine"—but write "I'm thinking of you" and "tell me about yourself."

Knowing correct forms too helps you make a pleasing impression. Stationery of white or a very pale tint is always in good taste. Address a widow as Mrs. Henry Jones, not Mrs. Mary Jones.

How to write letters of application, sympathy, thanks? Our 32-page booklet gives samples of these and many other letters to help you make your own successful. Has pointers on vocabulary, correct forms.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Letter Writing Made Easy" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Stewart-Thompson Nuptials Claims Interest Many Ranfurly Friends

RANFURLY.—Afternoon hour of half-past three o'clock was the time chosen for a pretty ceremony at the home of Mr. Archibald Thompson recently, when his only daughter, Kathleen Violet Thompson, became the bride of Joseph Stewart, second son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart of Ranfurly. Only close friends and immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, at which Rev. J. Henderson of Lavoy officiated. Mrs. N Stearns, aunt of the bride, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming afternoon frock in blue crepe with trimming in gold and corsage of roses and carnations.

Miss Beatrice Dunlop acted as bridesmaid, wearing a becoming dress in wine with corsage of bronze and yellow baby chrysanthemums. Mr. Raymond Stewart was best man.

Reception to 21 guests followed the ceremony. Mrs. C. Stearns and Mrs. H. Stearns presided at the tea urns while the Misses Betty Poaps and Enid Stearns assisted in serving. Later Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left for Edmonton to spend their honeymoon.

Vocabularies Must Be Brushed Up at Times

By ALICIA HART

"She's attractive until she opens her mouth," is a remark that's being made about many a girl these days when more and more people are becoming voice and speech conscious.

"In addition to taking stock of her voice every so often, every woman ought to do some housecleaning on her speech at least once a year," says an important beauty expert. "The housecleaning ought to consist of discarding outmoded and overly-used words and phrases.

She goes on to point out that it isn't smart to describe everything under the sun as "glamorous." Or to overwork words like cute, divine, gorgeous, smart or definitely. There are perfectly good words in their place, but their place is not in practically every sentence.

CONSULT "DR. WEBSTER"

A simple cure for this ailment would be to make a list of words you know you overwork. Then look up in the dictionary synonyms for each and make a resolution to substitute the synonyms for the threadbare words.

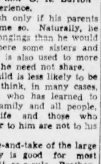

According to a literary expert, one easy way to make your vocabulary more interesting and give it some real punch is to eliminate entirely the word "very." Another advises elimination of superlatives unless they are honestly justified. And he says also, "Use a current slang expression no longer than three months. It couldn't possibly be funny or add color to your vocabulary after that length of time.

Raising A Family

Which of these is true of the only child?

A. Is he lonely?
B. Happy?
C. Selfish?
D. Anti-social?

Unless the one child in a family is completely cut off from friends and normal daily experiences, he is usually very happy. It is untrue that such children are victims of great loneliness.

Sometimes he doesn't quite know how to fit in his time, but not too often, because today, with all the group activities and entertainment going on, there are dozens of ways in which he can mix O. R. Barton and gain experience.

He is selfish only if his parents let him become so. Naturally, he has more belongings than he would have were there some sisters and brothers. He is also used to more conveniences he need not share.

The only child is less likely to be anti-social, I think, in many cases, than the one who has learned to distrust his family and all people, when home life and those who should be dear to him are not to his liking.

But the give-and-take of the large family usually is good for most everybody in it, as a rule. Brotherly love and sisterly love are good for the soul and breed loyalty, or should. Two or four children learn lessons from each other and a certain co-operation that founds sportsmanship and acceptance.

If a child has to learn to take his own part against depredations of sisters and brothers, that is also good for him, unless he reaches the point of disgust.

Then, too, as he grows older and loses one or both parents, it is fine for him to know that his own blood is flowing in other veins. After all, family blood is thicker than water, and that counts for a lot in later years.

Today I am not going to name "A" as the principal truth about the lone child. He is not usually too lonely. He is not selfish if he has parents wise enough to train him. He is usually quite happy. And he is anti-social only if he has no spirit at all and learns to fear others without reason.

What To Do

I am to be married next month at home. The wedding is to be very informal. Will navy blue afternoon frocks for the maid of honor and myself and gray double-breasted business suits for the groom, best man and my father be correct? Shall I come into the living room on my father's arm, walk to where the minister is standing, then kiss my father and the groom change places? Does the maid of honor hold the groom's ring as does the best man hold the bride's ring, or do I put the ring on the groom's finger immediately after he puts my ring on? Do I cut just the first slice of the wedding cake or more than that? Thank you. MISS M. I. H.

Answer: At an informal home wedding the men may wear gray business suits. But why not have your own dress in Copenhagen blue or teal? Even though the bride and her attendant follow the same style of dress, the colors are usually different. You enter the living room on the right arm of your father and meet the groom and minister at an improvised altar, relinquishing your father's arm and giving your right hand to the groom. You father remains standing a step or two back of you until he has made his response and presented you to the groom, after which he takes his place beside your mother. After the groom has placed the wedding ring on your finger, the maid of honor hands you the groom's ring and you place it on his finger. The bride always cuts the first slice of her wedding cake but generally the person serving or some one at the bride's table cuts additional slices for the guests.

Minute Make-Ups

6-20

Since hair is longer, curls larger and the coiffure more slick, remember that your hair must have as high a gloss as possible. The best way to achieve this is by methodical brushing, night and morning. Use a little brilliantine, too, rubbed on the bristles of your brush to give gloss to your hair—unless, of course, it is naturally oily.

Debunker

Authorities on beekeeping have little faith in the old belief that a swarm of bees can be brought to settle in a certain spot by beating on an old pan or kettle. It is a good way to announce to your neighbors that a swarm of bees is loose, but of little value in catching the runaway bees. Experiments with musical instruments, whistles, drums, bells and human song all have failed to show any particular effect upon the bees involved. One experimenter concluded that the bees were probably more interested in the antics of the soundmakers than in the sounds they produced.

HAS TREATED COLDS SAME WAY FOR 15 YEARS

A Strathroy, Ont., father writes . . .

"We have had Vicks VapoRub in our medicine cabinet for the past 15 years and it has the call whenever colds strike". There's only one reason for such loyalty—home-proved VapoRub relieves misery of colds.

British Columbia Fruit For Health Is Party's Creed

The apple girls are here!

Expounding the delicious flavor and healthful qualities of British Columbia apples, four young women from that fruit-growing province converged on Edmonton, Monday morning, carrying a message of goodwill from the far west to the prairies.

Aboard the goodwill Apple Caravan, headed by Charlie Hayden, secretary of the B.C. Fruit Growers, the four young women are Orilla and Alma Parent, sisters, who formerly lived at Coderre, Sask.; Dorothy Greenwood, of Vernon, B.C., and Mrs. Isobel Stillingfleet, of Kelowna, who is known as the apple-packing champion of the British empire.

This little group of goodwill ambassadors will remain in Edmonton until Tuesday evening, and while here will urge that luscious British Columbia apples be freely bought throughout the prairies, particularly in view of the national emergency which prevents any sizeable portion of this year's crop being exported.

While in the city, the Apple Girls will visit prominent officials and give demonstrations before various service clubs.

This year, apples, never better in quality or marketed at better advantage, have a higher appetite appeal than ever before, owing to progress in Canadian orchardry and the steadily increasing distribution of scientific facts which reveal that the apple content is the perfect combination of elements essential to the better health of both adults and children.

Eminent hygienists have heartily endorsed apples as a health food. Our health is regulated, to a great extent, by what we eat, and scientific research has revealed that fruits play a very important part in the promotion of health.

Apples Are Great Enemy Of Fatigue

Successful men and women in many fields of endeavor have proved the value of apples for "staying power" in their habit of eating them frequently, especially at midday and before going to bed. No food will build resistance against fatigue like apples, and science has revealed that two good apples and two glasses of milk make the perfect noon meal for business people and scholars.

Gift For Shut-Ins

The problem of thinking of some gift just a little different for "shut-in" friends can easily be answered with apples from the kitchen supply. Selection of the reddest and most perfect in shape for packing in a gay basket will bring smiles of appreciation for such thoughtfulness.

Entertaining unexpectedly should present no worry over the lack of table decoration if fresh apples are in the house. Few centrepieces at this time of the year could be more colorful or make a table look more tempting than a bowl of shiny, red apples.

In this respect, it has been revealed that no food can take the place of apples because, during their slow development under life-giving rays of sunlight, they store all the energy which activates from these rays.

The more sunlight, the better the apple, thus better health is assured in the eating of more and properly ripened apples from sun drenched orchards.

APPLE VITAMINS STORE SUNSHINE WHILE RIPENING

Claims by experts that no one can afford to omit apples from the daily diet is based on their knowledge of the sunshine stored in the vitamin content of the apple.

More and more attention has been directed to the apple since it has become so widely known how absolutely essential to health is the regular inclusion of foods containing these vital elements.

It has been found that foods which have the greatest opportunity of absorbing from the sun during development are most valuable, as human beings depend upon sunlight for growth and health.

Apples For Rosy Cheeks

Just ask this little girl what she likes best to eat. You don't have to wait for an answer—only watch her as she takes big bites of the huge, rosy apple. Apples keep her in the pink of health and, besides, they taste so good.

"Pick-Me-Up"

Some day of the week housework seems to go on and on, until preparation of the evening meal is dreaded. Apples are the perfect "carrying-on" food for such days, for their high iron content builds resistance against fatigue. On such heavy days, housewives who will just take the time to sit down for a few minutes and eat an apple will quickly learn the value of this "pick-me-up."

Help Win the War On the Home Front

Fly the flag high; sing patriotic songs till you're all out of breath; tell everybody that we didn't WANT the war, but now that we've got it we're going to win it!—then be sure that there's a box of Canadian apples in the larder—a box whose delicious contents are disappearing with unusual rapidity!

Canadians, of course, have always eaten Canadian apples. The thing to do now is to use MORE of them. Enjoy them oftener in their natural goodness—introduce them to a much greater extent in your cooking; seek out the recipes that call for them. Your loyalty can be expressed not only by the number of pairs of socks you knit—but by the frequency with which "a box of apples" goes down on your shopping list.

And buying apples by the box is the less expensive way—you help yourself when you help your country. Below, we quote prices of several B.C. varieties by the box or crate.

Apples Reach High Quality: Contain Vitamins Useful in Building Up Robust Health

Apples, never better in quality or marketed at better value, have a higher appetite appeal than ever before owing to progress in Canadian orchardry and the steadily increasing distribution of scientific facts revealing that the apple content is the perfect combination of elements essential to the better health of both adults and children.

Eminent hygienists strongly advocate the eating of raw apples every day.

Health—good health—is the greatest possession that man may have. Our health is regulated to a very large extent by what we eat and scientific research has revealed that fruits play very important part in the promotion of health, says C. C. Strachan, chemist, dominion experimental farm, Summerland, B.C.

Continual improvement in methods of biological and chemical analysis is further advancing our knowledge of nutrition. For instance, certain minerals formerly thought unnecessary are now proven to be essential constituents of a diet.

VALUE IN NUTRITION

Foods, with regard to their value in nutrition, may be classified as (1) body builders, (2) energy givers, and (3) regulators.

Body builders are those foods which produce growth and keep the body in a state of repair. The most important of these are water, protein and minerals.

Minerals, the inorganic constituents of the body, while not present in such large amounts as organic constituents, are nevertheless fundamentally just as important. Sodium and chlorine commonly taken in the form of table salt are indispensable components of a diet. Potassium is a necessity in the diet for proper growth. Phosphorous is an important component of bone, nervous and other tissues.

Calcium enters into the composition of bones and teeth and in a proper balance with phosphorous and vitamin D, is necessary for the prevention of rickets. Magnesium is required in small amounts. Iron enters into the composition of the blood. Iodine is a constituent of thyroxine glands. Extremely small amounts or iodine are required in goitre trouble.

Recent work has indicated that both copper and manganese are effective aids in the building of the blood. Zinc is regarded as possibly having some useful function in nutrition. Sulphur is a necessary constituent of body proteins. Most of these minerals occur in fruits in forms which can be readily taken up by the human body.

The group of foods known as regulators includes a large number of substances of which the more important are various organic acid and salts, water and vitamins. Acids and salts plan an important part in digestion and assimilation of food. They are found in many fruits and vegetables.

VITAMINS FUNCTION

The vitamins function in a variety of ways. There are at present six well defined groups, each having its own special work. Vitamin A promotes growth and increases resistance to infectious diseases. For instance, it combats the common cold. It is of greatest abundance in cod liver oil, but occurs in most fruits and vegetables.

Vitamin B promotes general health and protects against the specific disease beri beri. This vitamin is found in abundance in fruits and vegetables.

Vitamin C prevents scurvy and promotes proper growth of teeth. It is found in quantity in citrus fruits and other fresh fruits and vegetables. Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, as it is sometimes called, prevents or tends to prevent rickets. Vitamin G is essential to growth and normal nutrition at all ages. Milk, green leaves and all fruits so far studied, contain this factor.

Fruits occupy a very necessary and important place in the diet. They are readily and completely digested. Fruits are low in protein, but they have in most cases a fair carbohydrate or fuel value. Apples have an average sugar content of about 12 per cent.

The organic acid in nearly all the fruits produced in British Columbia may be used by the body to advantage. Where fruits have a decided advantage over certain other types of foods, is in their mineral and vitamin content. These are factors in which the diet is most often seriously lacking. Fruits enrich the diet with several of the essential mineral elements. The mineral values and minor yet very essential mineral elements, and the great food value of fruits becomes apparent. It is well in this connection to keep in mind that it is in these mineral elements and vitamins that our diet is most commonly lacking.

mild laxative tendency. Vitamin B in fruits has a beneficial effect on the tone of the intestinal muscles.

The percentage of nutrients give an inadequate expression of the true value of fruits as a food. The very low fat and protein content of Acceptance of the apple as the universal fruit is due to its adaptability to such a wide variety of uses in the household.

Foremost reason for this popularity can be attributed, of course, to its delicious flavor and convenience in eating raw, although it has become almost indispensable in the making of innumerable culinary delicacies.

Appetizing in color, aroma and natural cleanness, the apple, washed in protection against handling, is more often eaten without paring so that none of its juicy sweetness and distinctive flavor is lost. And it is in this manner of eating that the apple is such an aid to health.

Hygienists are agreed that in the promotion of a very vigorous digestion, in the cleansing and protection of teeth, in its stimulation of sluggish organs through purification of the blood and its bone-building minerals, the apple is a highly essential food.

The apple, so valuable for its nutritive and medicinal properties, is perhaps the cheapest article of the diet compared with its production cost.

buoyant health. Here is an excellent opportunity to invest, and economically too, in health and pleasure at one and the same time. Eat fruit and enjoy good health.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The stock market gained ground in spots today but fumbles were frequent.

Majority of leaders were content to emerge with fractional advances. Declines running to a point or so were seen here and there at the finish. Transfers were around 800,000 shares.

Du Pont posted a modest advance. The company declared a year-end dividend of $3.25, making total payments for the year $7 a share against $3.25 for all of 1938.

Up at one time or another—some eventually slipped—were U.S. Steel, U.S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Anaconda, American Smelting, American Airlines and Masonite.

Hesitant were Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, Sperry, Western Union and Sears Roebuck.

GRAIN EXCHANGE FACILITIES FOR NON-RESIDENTS

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20—Officials of the Winnipeg grain exchange today issued a statement announcing that facilities will be provided on and after Dec. 1 to permit non-residents to deal on the Winnipeg market.

The statement follows:

Under revised instructions issued today by the foreign exchange control board, facilities will be provided on and after Dec. 1 to enable non-residents to trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Since the coming into force of the foreign exchange control order, trading by non-residents has been restricted entirely to United States grain firms operating for their own account and the transfer of funds to and from the United States to cover margins, profits or losses arising from trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange on this basis has been permitted by the board.

Under the new instructions to the grain trade, the same facilities are now to be afforded to any non-resident wishing to trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange provided margins are put up in the first place in United States dollars. If margins have been deposited in United States dollars the board is prepared to provide United States dollars for the payment to non-residents of any profits made on futures trading and for margins from time to time released.

This will permit non-resident individuals as well as grain firms to trade in Winnipeg grain futures.

RELIEF GRANT CUT $17,488 FOR 3 MONTHS

August Payment From Province Has $6,021 Deduction

Grants in aid of unemployment relief, paid by the Alberta government and contributed to by the Dominion, have been cut to $17,488 for the three summer months from the amount of accounts submitted, it was learned Monday from city commissioners.

The city received a cheque for $43,670 as the grant-in-aid for August relief, the grant being cut $6,021 from the amount to which the city is entitled under the Dominion-provincial agreement. July grant was cut $5,775 and June $5,692.

The deduction was made by the province owing to its refusal to assist in support of those whom it classifies as "unemployables." The senior governments contribute 80 per cent. of material aid costs but this deduction cuts their grant to approximately 71 per cent. of costs for all relief recipients.

Buffalo Kill To Commence On Wednesday

Hunter Sam Purshell's mighty "Buffalo" rifle will begin roaring Wednesday for the west's last great buffalo hunt when the slaughter of 3,000 of the animals, whose hoofbeats once echoed over the western prairies, will be commenced at Wainwright national park. The animals, one of Canada's greatest tourist attractions and the largest herd in the world are being killed off on orders of the Dominion government. Between 700 and 800 elk have already been slaughtered.

To date 10 carloads of elk meat have been shipped to Indian reserves in Saskatchewan and Alberta and another car was scheduled to leave Monday for the Round Lake reserve in Saskatchewan.

ALBERTA'S HOG QUOTATIONS TOP CHICAGO PRICE

CALGARY, Nov. 20—While hogs are quoted at $6.05 per hundredweight in Chicago—the lowest price in five years—prices at the local stockyards are $2 higher.

Usually the Chicago market tops the local price but now a vastly different situation exists. When hogs reached a peak price of $13.75 in Chicago in August, 1937, the local price was $9.25. A year ago hogs were quoted at $8 in Chicago and $7.50 here. On September 6, after Chicago prices had risen $2.50 in one week, due to a war boom, the price there was $9.40, while here it was $7.75. Since then the local market has risen 25 cents while the Chicago market has declined $5.35.

The strong market here, contrasted to the weak tone at Chicago, is attributed to Canada's ready market for bacon and pork products in Great Britain.

Here's Another Cause Of Traffic Mishaps

—By Bulletin Staff Cameraman.

What's wrong with this picture? It's obvious. Any traffic policeman can tell you. The pedestrians indicated by the arrows are engaging in that popular old pedestrian pastime—jay-walking. They were caught by The Bulletin's cameraman walking in front of a tram toward the northwest corner of Jasper avenue and 101 street AGAINST THE RED LIGHT. The truck shown in the picture is proceeding west on Jasper on the green light. This is just another reason why people get hurt in traffic accidents. Jay-walkers like these will be nabbed by police under the new traffic ordinance which provides fines for heedless pedestrians.

PEDESTRIAN IS INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

Mrs. A. Moir Is Knocked Down On 118 Avenue—Driver Is Arrested

In spite of safety pleas and police drive on reckless driving and jay-walking another accident in which a person was injured was chalked up on the traffic record board over the week-end when a city woman was taken to hospital with a broken leg, and a truck driver was arrested.

Mrs. A. Moir, 12005 93 street, was knocked down by a truck driven by William Utendale, 9520 118 ave., near the intersection of 93 street on 118 avenue about 11 p.m. Saturday. She was rushed to the Royal Alexandra hospital in a Jack Hays' ambulance.

Police said that Mrs. Moir was 16 feet east of the property line of the intersection when she was knocked down. She was the 161st person injured in traffic occurrences in the city this year. Utendale was arrested on a charge of dangerous driving.

67 TAGGED

Police drive on traffic regulation violators continued over the week-end with 67 tags being issued and four summons applied for.

Twelve motorists received tags for failing to yield the right-of-way to pedestrians at proper crossings. 12 motorists were tagged for double parking, 38 received tags for overtime parking, and five bicyclists for riding at night without lights.

The summons went to two cyclists for not having lights on their bicycles, one to a cyclist for riding on a sidewalk, and one to a motorist for turning his auto between intersections.

POLICE WARNING

Motorists were warned that they must keep their license plates clean or be subject to prosecution, Sgt. Maj. Alex Riddell of the city traffic squad said Monday. At the same time he announced that police have started their drive against jay-walkers. In police court a motorist was fined $2 and $3.25 costs for operating an auto without a drivers' license.

FOUR PRETTY APPLE ENVOYS IN EDMONTON

Good-Will Caravan From B.C. Fruit Country Here On Campaign

Four blonde, blue-eyed pink-cheeked girls of the Okanagan valley, the apple ambassadors of the British Columbia fruit country, invaded Edmonton Monday to spread the story of health and flavor to be found in Canada's national fruit.

Here on a two-day visit they are demonstrating the method used in packing apples and expounding the delights of eating this luscious product of western orchards. While the girls give exhibitions of packing, talks on the value of the fruit are given by Charles A. Hayden, Vernon, B.C., secretary of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association.

VISIT MAYOR

Monday morning they visited Mayor John W. Fry at City Hall who welcomed them to the city and affixed his signature to a proclamation pledging his support of the campaign to "eat more apples."

Members of the apple caravan are Miss Izabel Stillingfleet of Kelowna, apple packing champion of the British Empire; Miss Dorothea Greenwood, Vernon; Misses Alma and Rilla Parent of Penticton.

"The girls not only are keenly interested in their work, but they complain if I don't keep them supplied with apples to eat while the

BURGLAR AIDS LAW RECOVER STOLEN LOOT

Phones Chief Shute and Tells Him Where Clothes Are Hidden

One of the burglars who broke into Robinson's Men's Clothes, Ltd., a week ago Sunday had a stroke of conscience Sunday night with the result that police have recovered all the loot taken by the burglars.

About 10 p.m. Sunday night the phone in Chief A. G. Shute's residence rang. The Chief picked up the receiver. A voice said: "I'm one of the guys that broke into Robinson's store last week. I'm sorry for what I've done. If you'll have one of your men look behind the nun's house on 81 avenue he'll find a parcel containing everything that was taken." Then there was a click as the person at the other end of the line hung up.

FINDS PARCEL

Chief Shute called the police station and passed the word along to Det. Alex Bremner, who went to the appointed place and found the parcel.

In the parcel Bremner found six suits, two pairs of dress trousers and two overcoats—everything that was taken in the raid on the store. "It is the first time anything like that has happened to me in more than 30 years of police work," said the chief.

ATTEMPT FAILS

Meanwhile, Sunday night, police believe another attempt to break into Robinson's store failed. The manager of the plant wa sabout to leave the shop late Sunday night when he saw a man on the front stairs. The man ran and shouted and then there was the sound of footsteps on the roof as the would-be thief fled.

THE QUESTION

"Do you think a lady should propose in Leap Year?" asks M. Bertrand of 321 Groat Ravine, and the question brings in one dollar to Mr. Bertrand.

THE ANSWERS

BRUCE MARSHALL, agriculturist: Aren't you taking your life in your hands wandering around asking questions like that? If the lady wants to propose I imagine she will, with never an act of God to prevent her.

• • •

MRS. ADAM PORTER-DODDS, housewife: Good heavens, next year is Leap Year, isn't it. How time flies!

MARGARET PARSONS, nurse: No, I don't think the girls should propose. After seeing "The Women," I think even the least uninitiated minority realize that women have a way of getting what they want, without bothering to ask for it in so many words.

• • •

GLADYS McLEAN, continuity writer: I think you'd better get your answer from someone else. I wouldn't know what to say even if I weren't too busy to say it. L'Inconnu: H'm!

RELIGION CAN KILL TROUBLE PASTOR AVERS

Rev. Burton Condemns Escapist Method In Meeting Problems

Facing and overcoming conditions which appear unbearable can best be done by profession and adoption of religion, asserted Rev. R. J. Burton, addressing the congregation of Strathcona Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

"Man, throughout his life, has a number of problems to face, problems of his own creation, and therefore of a nature which requires the solution by himself, with whatever aid he can find," he said.

ESCAPIST METHODS

Escapist methods have always proved unsatisfactory, maintained Rev. Burton. Drink, he said, was a negative solution which only manages to enlarge the problems.

Religion is the only true and valid solution as a guide and aid in facing and solving the many conditions which we consider almost unbearable, and divine aid its essential if we are to reach a lasting solution, he maintained.

In the evening, Rev. Mr. Burton spoke on The Hidden Treasure.

Rev. Rowan Binning, B.A., of Wetaskiwin was guest preacher at Bissell Memorial Sunday evening, when he took charge of the anniversary services of United Church All People's Mission.

Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. service was held at First Baptist Church Sunday evening when leaders of the two organizations were on the platform.

5 WOULD KILL

By Tom Horner

CAST OF CHARACTERS

ARNOLD BENTHORNE—Five persons wished him dead.

HELEN BENTHORNE—His charming young wife.

WILLIAM ALSTON—Benthorne's father-in-law and business associate.

JOEY DI TORIO—Night club owner and gangster.

ARA JOHNSON—The mystery girl.

CAPTAIN DAWSON—A detective who likes to listen.

Yesterday: A taxi stops in front of Benthorne's shortly before midnight. As Officer Flynn questions the driver and the two passengers, the young man slips away. The girl pushes Flynn from the cab and it speeds away. William Alston comes to see his daughter. Joey di Torio makes sure he has an alibi.

CHAPTER III

"IT'S murder, all right," Captain Dawson of the homicide squad agreed with the coroner's deputy who knelt beside Arnold Benthorne's body. "Shot through the forehead. Death instantaneous. Absence of powder burns eliminates suicide. His own gun was in the drawer, anyway."

The deputy nodded. "Mr. Benthorne evidently was expecting his visitor"—he glanced upward at the lamp shade, still turned toward the door—"but there's one puzzling thing, Captain Dawson. Benthorne's body is almost under the desk. The impact of the bullet should have knocked him backward, but he fell on his face."

"Someone might have turned him over," Dawson supplied.

"I doubt that," the coroner continued. Blood flowed directly from the wound to the carpet. There was no trickle across the face—and killers don't wipe off the face of their victims. Benthorne was reaching for something when he was killed."

"The gun?"

"The revolver is in a drawer to the right. If, seated in his chair, Benthorne had jumped for the gun, his body would have fallen to the right. As it was, he fell to the left. He must have been reaching for a left-hand drawer, and was completely off balance—"

"There's nothing but a checkbook, a diary, a box of cigars, and a few letters in that left drawer. The others are empty," Dawson interrupted.

"You've got all the pictures and everything you want now?" he went on. The deputy nodded. "Then take the body to the city morgue. Hold it there until you hear from me. I don't want to talk to reporters until morning." Dawson turned to a detective, busy at the window. "Any fingerprints?"

"Not a one, or footprints either. Too rainy—"

"But you do think someone came in that window?"

"I'm sure, sir. The sill has a mark that might have been made by a rubber sole. The person who came through the window knew what he was doing. He wore gloves, wiped the sill off after he had climbed out, and was careful to walk lightly. What tracks he did leave were washed out by the rain and you can't track him on the sidewalk."

"Could that mark have been made earlier — before tonight — pointed there to make us think someone did go out that window?" Dawson shot at him.

"That's possible, Captain, but I doubt if it would have been so heavy—"

"The person who made it could have marked it heavily to be sure the rain didn't wash it off," couldn't he?" Dawson countered.

The detective nodded. "Okay." Dawson went on. "Let me have a full report as soon as possible. And send up the pictures. And tone Dan Flynn come in here right away. He's with the prisoners in the front room. I'm giving them time to think up good stories."

"I'll send him, Captain." The detective closed the door. Dawson was alone in the study. He walked to the door, surveyed the scene. The light caught him full in the face. The open safe, the bookcase pulled out. Had Benthorne done that? Or had someone actually been in the room after Benthorne was shot?

Benthorne's fall to left of desk might be explained if the killer had entered through the window. But surely, Dawson thought, Benthorne would have heard the window opening. No man would have a window open wide in last night's rain—ten. The curtain would have been sucked. The shade was dry, although the curtains and the carpet beneath the window were wet. Dawson remembered seeing the shade drawn when he checked Flynn at 11:30.

Absently, Dawson picked up the desk pen, began to draw "doodles" on the blotter. The pen was dry. He shook it. Ink flowed easily. He replaced the pen in its holder, recalling that he had picked it up from the desk. So Benthorne had been writing. What?

* * *

"You wanted me, Captain?" Patrolman Dan Flynn asked from the doorway.

"Yes, Flynn. I want to hear your whole story over again. You skip about those kids wanting to get married. Tell me what happened after you heard the shot."

"It was just as I told you at first, sir," Flynn began. "I blows my whistle, when the taxicab pulled away, and went for my gun. But the cab turned the first corner. I stood there for a minute or so—not more than two—and then I hears a shot.

"I runs to the front door, and almost ran into Krone's gun as he came racing around the house—"

"You mean Krone left his post?" Dawson put in.

"It was my fault, sir," Flynn explained. "I shouldn't have blown my whistle. We pounded on the front door and at last this butler—Jameson—comes down and lets us in.

"We found Mrs. Benthorne rattling the doorknob and trying to open the door. It was locked, apparently from the inside, for there was no key in the outside lock.

"Krone and I tried to force, but there isn't much room to run across the hallway and that's a heavy door. Mrs. Benthorne stopped screaming long enough to tell us the door couldn't be locked, that the lock was broken, and Jameson said the same thing. Jameson rushed down, got a screwdriver and we took the door off the hinges. I squeezed through and found this heavy chair propped against the doorknob.

"Looks like Benthorne had the door well blocked, or the murderer put the chair there after he shot Benthorne—"

Dawson ignored the observation. "How long did it take you to get through the door?"

"Not more than 10 minutes at the most, Captain."

"Oh, yes," Flynn went on. "While we were working on the door this Mr. Alston, Mrs. Benthorne's father, comes down the front stairway. He said he'd gone up the back way to Benthorne's sitting room—Krone met him at the back door, you know—heard the shot and hurried down the stairs. He don't get along very fast. He's got a bad heart. He was just telling me about it."

Dawson nodded. "Was everything in this room just as I found it? Window open, shade up, light shade tilted and all?"

"Yes, sir. Well, one thing was moved. I—"

"What was moved, Flynn?" Dawson almost shouted the words.

"Well, sir, when Mrs. Benthorne saw her husband's body there on the floor, she rushed in and knelt beside it. She started to lift Benthorne's head, but I told her not to touch him. Then her father comes up, and starts to lift her up and I moved the wastebasket around to the other side of the desk so he could get to her. I intended to put it back, and I must have forgot, sir."

Dawson did not hear Flynn's explanation. He was on his knees beside the basket, smoothing out the papers, scanning them closely. One crumpled sheet held his attention. He read it swiftly, handed it to Flynn.

"It's good you didn't decide to empty that wastebasket, Flynn," he said. "Take a look at that."

Mouth open, Flynn stared at the paper.

"'I will be killed tonight,'" he began.

Terry Pin's Tips On

OSTRICHES

Ostrich feathers are pulled out of the bird's tail and used for hats, and fans for fan dancers. It is a shame about the hats.

An ostrich can run as fast as a horse. But he deserves less credit because he only has two legs to move that fast.

When an ostrich wants to hide, he sticks his head in the sand. To find him, you must stick your head in the sand, too. But watch your tail-feathers.

The ostrich has a very long neck. Some women have very long necks. But the ostrich, at least, tries to keep out of sight.

HORE-BELISHA SAYS BRITAIN WINNING WAR

War Secretary Is Greatly Pleased With Troops Seen In France

WITH THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Nov. 20.—"Britain is comfortably winning this war," Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary for war, declared Sunday on an inspection of the western front.

The war secretary has been conferring with Viscount Gort, British commander-in-chief of forces in the field, General Maurice Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the Allied forces, and Premier Daladier of France.

"It is the type of war we do best—just digging in and sitting tight," he added. "It is life old boxing principle to keep a man at arms' length and tire him out.

"I am greatly pleased with everything I have seen."

The war secretary accompanied by Lord Gort yesterday inspected more than 100 miles of a French sector neighboring that held by British troops.

After a sandwich lunch in his automobile, Mr. Hore-Belisha left for Paris, where he will confer again with Premier Daladier and General Gamelin.

British Columbia Alberta Customer

British Columbia imports most of its primary products—butter, eggs, bacon, wheat, cattle, horses—from Alberta and forms one of the most important and extensive markets this province has, Charles A. Hayden, of Vernon, B.C., informed Premier William Aberhart and members of his cabinet at the legislative buildings today.

Premier Aberhart signed a petition presented to him by Mr. Hayden, appealing to the prairie provinces to support sale of British Columbia apples this year, especially as it is expected there will be a surplus of 1,000,000 boxes due to a month for this product established for export to Britain, the government feeling that available space should be mainly used for more compressed foodstuffs in view of the war.

Swiss Murder Trial Of Alberta Settler Couple Recalls North Mystery

By F. R. F. McKITRICK
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

BAY TREE, Alta., Nov. 20.—In the spring of 1935 a group of Swiss folk came to settle on land bought from Mr. Clearwater, Sr., a pioneer homesteader of the Bay Tree settlement, in Alberta, to the east of the B. C. Peace Block, and about 12 miles east of the town of Pouce Coupe, B.C.

These people were welcomed in the settlement for they had real cash to spend. They bought farms and equipment and plad cash for all their requirements.

At Biel, Switzerland, on November 11 last, Ernest Schupbach, one of this group of Swiss settlers, was found guilty of, and sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Maurice Nicolet, his nine-year-old stepson, who disappeared from the Bay Tree farm in September, 1935. Mrs. Schupbach at the same time was sentenced to eight years for possibing her first husband Paul Nicolet, in Switzerland the year before.

NEIGHBORS REMEMBER

After the Schupbachs had pulled stakes and left northern Alberta for Switzerland, neighbors began to recall the Schupbachs and their actions and to wonder where their money came from and what had been the fate of the small boy.

In May, 1935, the three Schupbach brothers came to the Immigration Hall in Edmonton. There were Sam, who had been in Canada before, and his two brothers, Ernest and John, with their wives and families. With Ernest were his wife, formerly Mrs. Paul Nicolet, and her children, Yvonne and Maurice. When in Edmonton they left all the children in the city and taxied to visit a relative who was a patient in the Ponoka hospital.

On their return to the city they bought a used Ford one-ton truck which Ernest and Sam drove to Pouce Coupe. The rest of the family took the N.A.R. train to Pouce Coupe, where they waited until the truck arrived, when they all went out to their farm.

They made many friends in the towns of Pouce Coupe and Dawson Creek and in the farm settlements of Bay Tree and Briar Ridge.

As an example of how free they were with their money, it is recalled that, while in Edmonton, Ernest several times offered a woman $10 for taking care of the children for just a few hours while they made their trip to Ponoka. The woman refused pay, saying she found it pleasant to take care of the nice boy and his sister.

WERE MUSICAL

The Schupbachs, all the neighbors said, seemed to be nice people. They were musical and helped at local entertainments in a pleasing way.

In September 1935 there came a surprise when the police and a magistrate held court to try one of the Schupbach brothers on a charge of using firearms in a dispute with a neighbor.

One day Maurice Nicolet, stepson of Ernest Schupbach, was reported missing from home. Neighbors rallied and searched the district for him. One of the neighbors, T. Leslie, on his way to the Schupbach farm, passed the school house and found the boy hiding in the school, though it was long after school hours.

RESISTS

When found by the farmer, Maurice resisted and did not want to go home. He kept saying, 'Papa, papa.' He had just started school there and could not yet speak English, just French and German. He was taken home that night but soon started that the stepfather was cruel to the boy.

On the evening of Saturday, September 21, 1935, Maurice and Yvonne Nicolet were said to have been together in the cow stable. Yvonne was milking and Maurice was holding the tail of the cow to keep it from switching Yvonne in the face when the flies were bad. Maurice let go the tail and Yvonne finished the task alone. The boy was not seen alive after that.

When a child is lost, frontier settlers leave their most urgent work to join the search. So, on Sunday, Monday and for several days, squads of as many as 25 men and women from both Alberta and B.C. sides of the boundary searched for the boy.

Scouts went east along the canal road to Moose Creek, north across Bear Creek, through Bonanza settlement. Trained hunters searched all the forest trails. R.C.M.P. and B.C. police had several men on the job. Some attention was paid to a trip made by Ernest Schupbach back along the hilchway leading through Hythe to Grande Prairie with his truck. It was reported he had a pile of earth on the back of the truck. Blood marks on the truck were not proved to be of human blood and Schupbach said he had been carrying meat.

MOTHER DREAMED

It was later reported that the mother had a dream of seeing the boy wounded on the side of the head, and about the time this story reached the settlement, Mr. and Mrs. Schupbach and Yvonne packed up and left for Switzerland. This was in the fall of 1935.

About September 23, the writer met the couple in Pouce Coupe. They asked him to write to the paper to assist in helping find the boy. His hair and eyes were the same color as his mother's, they said. The woman's eyes were tearless and emotionless, although at that time a squad of neighbors was still searching for the child.

Though the mother, sister and stepfather went back to Switzerland, the neighbors did not forget the little boy. They recalled the easy spending of money and wondered if, perhaps, it was money that really belonged to the boy. From enquiries it was at last learned that the boy was heir to an estate.

In 1937 Schupbach and his wife were arrested in Switzerland.

In the investigation just concluded, the Swiss courts tried a Swiss national for a murder, committed in Canada, of a Swiss national. Had Schupbach been tried in Canada and convicted the penalty would have been death. The maximum sentence in Switzerland is life imprisonment, but the sentence means just that. There is no parole.

INQUIRY HELD

At the request of the Swiss government, an inquiry was held at Bay Tree, into the death of the child, by Magistrate A. E. Galwey of Grande Prairie. Mayor T. W. Lawlor, K.C., of Grande Prairie, conducted the enquiry and examined the witnesses as agent for the attorney-general.

R.C.M.P. searched a spot described by Schupbach to the Swiss authorities and found three small bones and a piece of shirt of the same material as that worn by the boy on the day he disappeared.

The trial in Switzerland was watched with keen interest by settlers who learned that, while they were combing the bush country to find the child, the parents already knew he was dead.

The boy's death leaves Yvonne Nicolet, daughter of Mrs. Schupbach, the surviving heir to the Nicolet estate. She attending Bay Tree school and made many friends in this locality.

One of the other Schupbach brothers was left on the farm, bought with the money of Paul Nicolet, Mrs. Schupbach's first husband.

It may now be taken by Swiss authorities, declared, either through Swiss or Canadian courts, to be Yvonne's property.

Raw Apple Is Stated Best As Vitamin Food

Valued for its raw appetizer, it is the dangers of a diet deficient in vitamins that are emphasized by Dr. Mary Rogers, dietetic adviser to the Canadian Council on Nutrition, in an endorsement of this fashionable reckoning and its total neglect of cooking. She considers that the destruction of raw food should be looked upon as a "cardinal sin," rather than a luxury.

NAZI THREATS CAN'T SCARE MANION SAYS

Frightful Acts Won't Shatter British Morale, Meeting Told

Neither threats of German frightfulness nor the actual frightful acts of that nation can shatter the morale of the British people, Hon. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, told a representative gathering of party followers from Edmonton and district at a luncheon given in his honor at the Corona Hotel Saturday.

The greater the threat from an enemy to enslave the British people the greater their resistance to the aggressor, Dr. Manion declared in predicting that Hitler and "that other barbarian with whom he has surrounded himself," had, in attempting Britain, made the same mistake as a long succession of other traditional leaders.

SHOWS DIFFERENCE

Dr. Manion drew a distinction between the blood-thirsty and tyrannical Nazi regime and the German people upon which it has fastened itself.

There are many people in Canada of German origin who have become good and loyal citizens, who abhor Nazism, and who should not be criticized because of their German birth or ancestry, he said. "Let us remember that when this war is over it is our duty to deal justly with Germany, and to help the German people to set their house in order," the Conservative leader declared. The regime that dominated Germany now was not to be confused with the German people themselves.

Dr. Manion stressed that Britain and France were fighting "not only for our way of life, but for our very lives." If such a thing should happen that Nazi Germany emerge victorious from the present war the first country on which they would cast covetous eyes would be Canada.

JUNGLE LAW

Canada's vast resources and vast unpopulated spaces would be taken over by the German regime. "We would be ground down under the same kind of the jungle law now prevails in Europe," he declared.

Britain, France and the British Empire are fighting for liberty and order and decency, for a permanent peace, not a truce and because we hate war," he continued.

Dr. Manion was introduced by D. M. A. McIntyre, vice-president of the Alberta Conservative Association, seated at the head table were: Major General Hon. W. A. Grasett, abd. Mrs. Grasett, Sidney Geo. Edgecliffe, K.C., Conservative candidate; and Mrs. Gee; Adj. J. H. Ogilvie, Edmonton West Conservative candidate; C. H. Russell, K.C., Conservative candidate; Wetaskiwin, Neil Buchan; James Edson Conservative candidate; D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., provincial secretary, and Mrs. Duggan; Col. F. C. Jamieson, K.C.; R. D. Tighe, K.C., president of the Edmonton conservative association; Quinn, Peace River; James Sutherland, Namao; and Elmyr Stutchbury.

Coleman Club Springs Surprise With 4-3 Victory Against Oil Crew

LETHBRIDGE, Nov. 20—Duke Keats' Coleman Canadians pulled the big surprise of the Alberta Senior Hockey League opening here Saturday night by defeating Elmer Piper's Turner Valley Oilers 4-3. About 2,500 saw the cleverly played contest.

Coleman marksmen were Dan Sprout with two, Johnny Sheppard and Billy Fraser. Doug Atkinson, Meyer Flett and Jake Milford counted for Oilers.

Only two minor penalties were called, one going to Mackinnon in the first period and one to Sheppard in the third. Milfords goal came while Sheppard was serving his sentence.

While Oilers were undoubtedly in better condition than Canadians who have had not more than half a dozen workouts on the Lethbridge rink, the Pass players reserved their energy for spurts that produced goals when they were most needed. Smart passing plays and alert work around the goal mouth were exhibited by the Keats-coached outfit which promises to be one of the league's surprise packages. Goalie Bud Wolfe, with a fine exhibition between the pipes, played a major part in the victory.

OILERS OPEN IT

After a ragged first period, Oilers opened the scoring when Atkinson slipped in Cairns' rebound after Jim Coleman defence failed to clear. Coleman equalized on a smart passing play, Sprout scoring from close range after a double relay, McKillop to Sheppard. A minute later Canadians took the lead when Sheppard snapped in McKillops rebound.

Oils tied the count near the halfway mark of the final period, Flett scoring when he took Cairns' pass from a faceoff inside the Coleman blue line.

Sinderson set up the play for the winning marker, passing to Fraser who snapped the relay into the net before Roche could make a move.

Canadians were unfortunate not to score additional goals as Oilers opened up in an effort to cut down the deficit. A penalty to Sheppard gave Turner Valley a chance to gang up and Milford scored the final goal of the game in the last two minutes of play when he was left unguarded in front of the Coleman goal. Atkinson passed from the right boards to the big winger who played for Lethbridge last season.

Calgary Defeats Miners 6-2 Before 4,892 Cash Customers

CALGARY, Nov. 20.—Four thousand, eight hundred and ninety-two persons paid admission to the arena Saturday night to welcome the return of senior amateur hockey for the 1930-40 season.

They saw Stampeders take a 6-2 victory over Drumheller Miners in a game that was so spirited that no less than 22 penalties, including six majors and one misconduct, were imposed by Referee Pete Rule of Edmonton.

Miners fared the worst in regard to penalties, securing 12 for a total of 33 minutes compared to 10 by Stampeders for 29 minutes.

It was a lively opener with Miners holding a one goal margin until the early part of the second period. Miners did not have had as much preliminary practice as the Stampeders and up to a few hours before the players skated on the ice Manager Roy Bentley didn't know how he would line up his team. Joe Brown Injured In Football Game

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—The major casualty in Saturday's U.C.L.A.-Santa Clara football game was a rabid rooter who fell off U.C.L.A.'s players' bench during the excitement and twisted a knee. He was Joe E. Brown, the comedian.

YARA, Aus., Nov. 20.—Splendid in his kilts, Lionel Watts, newly-joined private of the Victoria Scottish Regiment, jumped into the Yarra river to save Clyde Rennie, three, who had fallen off the dock.

O'Brien, Scoop Bentley and Roche combined to score Miners second goal. A three-way play by Desmarais, Shannon and Duchak enabled the latter to beat Pow and the count was 5-2.

Riders Beat Argos 11-0 In First of Title Series

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Ottawa Rough Riders' dynamite line, smashing ground attack and forward passes that click in the pinches looks like the potent combination that might block Toronto Argonauts in their drive to a third consecutive Dominion football championship.

On a perfect field at Lansdown Park here Saturday Riders blanketed Argos 11-0 before 12,000 fans in the first game of the two game, points-to-count Big Four playoff and looked good enough to hold the lead in the second engagement in Toronto next Saturday.

Toronto far outplayed Riders in forward passing, completing nine of 20, but they bobbled the ball when they were in scoring positions and Riders drove through to victory by taking advantage of every break.

An unconverted touchdown by Tommy Daley in the first quarter and another by Tony Golab in the fourth, which Tiny Herman converted, accounted for Ottawa's points.

Riders outclassed Argos along the line making 13 first downs and gaining 264 ... rule from scrimmage while Toronto held to seven first ... ...

SARNIA, Nov. 20.—Don't go out on a limb in support of any Canadian senior football team until Sarnia Imperials' new-found power along the line undergoes another thorough test.

The line, charging and tackling better than any Sarnia front wall in a long time, was almost the entire show when the Imperials maintained their great home-grounds record Saturday afternoon by mowing Montreal Westmounts 13-1 as the Ontario Union finals began. The Oilers, who haven't been beaten here since 1925, will carry a 12-point lead to Montreal for the second game of the total-points round next Saturday.

Breaking up three Montreal kicks, the Imperials turned two of them into touchdowns. The line gave young Hank Galloway perfect protection for his consistent 60-yard kicking. The outsiders stabbed to stop Westmounts plays

Power Plays Bring Victory Over Elks

BY JACK KELLY
Edmonton Bulletin Sports Editor

CAPITALIZING on penalties with an effective power play that netted them three of their goals, Edmonton Flyers started the Alberta Senior Hockey League schedule with a 4-3 win over Olds Elks on Saturday night. This curtain raiser drew approximately 4,000 fans.

Greater experience and a tighter defensive system behind the blue line carried the new Flyers to a flying start. Against this experience and power the Olds Elks struck with speed, persistency and fire. Right up until the final bell, Frank Coulson's Elks threatened to tie the game up and squeeze out a win.

The result was mighty interesting hockey—so interesting that hardly a fan left his seat until the final play was made. Both teams proved to be in exceptionally good shape for the opener and turned on power from the start to finish. At each blue line the rear guards handed out solid bodychecks or the sort that promises robust hockey this winter.

Coach Eddie O'Keefe played a major part in assuring the Flyers a victory when he figured in two power-play goals in less than a minute, half-way through the first period when Culley of the Elks was serving a penalty for tripping Haxby. These were the first tallies of the game. O'Keefe got the initial Flyer goal when he batted the puck into the net from about 12 feet out. Shamlock and Skinner were credited with assists on the play. Lea Bird chalked up the second Flyer goal 53 seconds later with O'Keefe and Shamlock registering assists.

ELKS STRIKE BACK

Shortly after this blitzkrieg, Olds struck back with a power play as Talbot of the Flyers served time for boarding an Elk. Only the agility and luck of Goalie Robbins prevented Olds tying the score up on this power attack. The puck hit the toe of Robbins' skate once and glanced out as he lay spread-eagled in front of the net, while the second dangerous shot was stopped by a lightning dive and catch.

Halfway through the second period, Lunde of the Elks drew a penalty for high sticking and the Flyers immediately crammed on the power. Harry Brown fed a nice pass to Shamlock in the goal mouth for the third Edmonton counter of the evening.

At this stage of the game, Olds began getting hard and swarmed in steadily around the Flyer citadel. After some five minutes of this heavy pressure, Black bored in on a fast solo effort and beat Goalie Robbins from close in for the first Elk goal of the game. Three minutes later Ryley Mullen counted the second Elk goal with another single-handed effort. It came during a power play while Talbot of the Flyers was in the penalty box.

HAXBY SETTLES IT

Four minutes of the third period had elapsed when Haxby got the Flyers fourth and winning goal. He rapped it into the net after a smart bit of passing between O'Keefe and Shamlock.

Ten minutes later Culley and David, Edmonton juniors last season, combined to get Olds' third and final goal. The two youngsters went in on the Edmonton net with the smoothest thrust of the evening, Culley beating Robbins nicely from point blank range.

POWERFUL WINNIPEGGERS CROWNED GRID CHAMPS

Blue Bombers Shell Calgary Bronks 28-7

By LORNE BRUCE

CALGARY, Nov. 20.—Winnipeg's powerful Blue Bombers smashed through a sluggish herd of Calgary Bronks for a 28-7 victory here Saturday and the Manitobans' third consecutive western senior football championship.

Bombers, beaten 13-7 in the first game of the total-points series, tied up the round after less than a minute's play and continued their almost vicious attack to win the round 35-20.

The western champions will go east in quest of the dominion title they failed to win in 1937 and last year. The Western Interprovincial Union decided the western winners would agree to play in a semi-final if it was necessary to speed the eastern playdowns.

A near-record crowd of almost 5,000 was stunned as their listless Bronks showed only brief flashes of the form that enabled them to beat Regina Roughriders in the conference-semi-final and Winnipeg in the first game of the final.

HANSON WAS GREAT

Fritzie Hanson, Winnipeg's elusive backfielder, had one of his great days, gaining 192 yards in the 18 times he carried the ball over the dry, fast field. Hanson ran through the Calgary line for two touchdowns.

Bill Ceretti and Ches McCance scored a touchdown apiece and Greg Kabat converted all four Winnipeg touchdowns from placement besides kicking a field goal. Martin Geinor earned the other Bomber point by roughing Willard "Bo" Bisbing.

Calgary's lone touchdown was scored by Bisbing and Paul Rowe converted from placement. Hal Harrison rouged Hanson for Bronk's other point.

Just short of Hanson's fine display was the work of Andy Bieber who carried the brunt of the Winnipeg offensive. Bieber never had any trouble making yards through the loose Calgary line, gaining 100 yards on 23 plunges.

PROVE RESERVES

Minus backfielders Bill Bolvin and Wayne Sheley and outside "Bud" Marquardt, all on the injured list, Bombers proved their reserve strength. Outstanding was the work of 21-year-old Martin Platz who was on the starting lineup for the first time and played a great game both on the attack and defence.

Bombers gained 316 yards from scrimmage and made 15 first downs and Calgary advanced 90 yards from scrimmage and moved the yardsticks four times. Bombers completed four of seven attempted forward passes for a total gain of 46 yards and Bronks completed three on eight tries for 64 yards.

Calgary only fumbled twice but both times Bombers recovered and scored touchdowns. Bombers recovered three of their four fumbles. Each side kicked 10 times, Calgary's going a total of 401 yards, Winnipeg's 438. On penalties Bombers lost 40 yards and Calgary 35.

Calgary, bidding for its second championship although teams from the foothills city have reached the final 12 times since winning in 1911, never appeared to have a chance after a fumble by Jimmy Gilkes on the first running play of the game. Ceretti, apparently surprised to find the bounding ball in his arms, hesitated for a couple of seconds before trotting 16 yards for a touchdown without a Calgary player getting near him.

Soon after Bisbing's punt after a low angle went out of bounds at the line of scrimmage—Calgary's 20-yard line—and three plays later Kabat kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line.

'TWAS A BREEZE

Bombers, charging fiercely and tackling sharply, added another touchdown in the first quarter after a 30-yard drive.

Early in the second quarter Bisbing made the second Calgary fumble and Jeff Nicklin picked up the ball and ran 47 yards for the Calgary four. Hanson went over the goal line behind excellent blocking.

The diminutive Hanson's broken field running ability was never shown more convincingly than in the third quarter when he ran 69 yards for a touchdown. He zigged through the line, side-stepped four or five tacklers and streaked for the goal line with three Bronks at his heels and losing ground all the way.

Except for a 35-yard advance through the air that was smothered by the Winnipeg line just before the first half ended, Calgary came to life only in the 93-yard drive on six plays that brought a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Oklahoma's Sooners And North Carolina Hit Greased Skids

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Oklahoma's Sooners and the Tarheels of North Carolina bounced out of the dwindling undefeated class in United States college football Saturday but the headlines belonged to Iowa's sensational Hawkeyes.

KINNICK IS HERO

Paced by the great Nile Kinnick, Iowa spotted Minnesota a 9-0 lead and then rallied to whip the Gophers 13-9 before a crowd of 50,000 at Iowa City. Kinnick, completing his sixth successive game without relief, passed for both Hawkeye touchdowns.

Oklahoma suffered its first regular season defeat in two years as Missouri's Tigers squeezed through a 7-6 victory and virtually clinched the big six crown.

North Carolina was decisively outplayed by Duke's Blue Devils 13-3.

Tennessee, top-ranking team in the Associated Press poll for several weeks, whipped Vanderbilt 13-0 to maintain its unscored-upon record. Tulane walloped Columbia 25-0 while Nebraska beat Pitt in a great duel 14-13.

Cornell, unbeaten and untied, threw its full strength against Dartmouth in an important Ivy league struggle and swamped the Indians 35-6.

Ohio State found Illinois an easy victim 21-0 and thus clinched at least a share of the Big Ten title. Notre Dame's second and third stringers led the Irish to a 7-0 conquest of Northwestern.

One of the greatest personal duels of the day occurred at Philadelphia where Tom Harmon paced Michigan to a 19-17 victory over Penn, led by Francis Reagon.

Oregon State and Washington State hung up victories in the Pacific Coast conference where the leaders are southern California and University of California at Los Angeles. Oregon State crushed California 21-0 while Washington State subdued Stanford 7-0.

Southern California was idle but U.C.L.A. played to a scoreless tie with non-conference Santa Clara.

Regina Dales Win Junior Football Title By 2-0

REGINA, Nov. 20.—A record junior rugby crowd of close to 5,000 watched Regina Dales win their third successive western final from Winnipeg Young Men's Hebrew association 2-0 in summerlike weather here Saturday. Rouges in the second and third quarters gave the Reginans their edge.

Holders of the unofficial dominion championship last year, Dales have made no plans to defend their title.

The score flattered the Hebrews who took a beating on the ground as Dales piled up 266 yards rushing and 14 first downs to Winnipeg's 37 yards and three first downs. But the Manitobans took the breaks of the game in their stride and had two shots at a field goal in the fourth quarter to give Dale supporters a scare.

Dales twice marched down the field in the opening quarter as they made six first downs, but they were held on the Winnipeg one-yard line in the final drive and the quarter was scoreless.

In the second quarter, Bill Fogarty unleashed a 50-yard punt and Norm Geller was rouged for the first point. Hebrews threatened a minute later as Irwin Wagner recovered a fumble punt on the Dale 15, but the Manitobans could make no headway and Fogarty ran Geller's attempted field goal out of the end zone.

An intercepted pass, which Doug. Potts ran to the Winnipeg 20, set the stage for the final score early in the third quarter. Ken Charlton attempted a field goal that went wide and Norm Morrison was rouged on the play.

Fiery Maple Leaf Athletic Club Ties E.A.C., 5-5 In Junior Opener

By JACK DEAKIN

THOSE fiery young junior hockeyists presented a capacity crowd with a rousing 70-minute overtime battle at the Arena Sunday afternoon, and received in turn a boisterous reception from the fans as Edmonton Athletic club battled to a 5-5 tie against Maple Leaf Athletic Club in the Junior League opener.

Both clubs were forced to rally from the depths of adversity. E.A.C. put on the first spurt. Late in the second frame it was the Leafs who had to keep off the score at 3-3 while in the third period Leafs again enjoyed an early lead. They lost it, came from behind in the last few minutes of the final frame to end regulation time at 5-5.

Two three-minute overtime sessions failed to produce a tally either way and the score ended in the 5-5 draw as the juniors turned in a fast, rousing and certainly pleasing exhibition.

There was an unlimited supply of that old "college try" spirit in the store see-sawed back and forth while territorial play was even for the most part.

FINE GOALING

Forwards travelled at a fast clip. Defencemen handed out checks of the stiff variety and both Ken McAuley in the Leaf net and Howie Bliefgen in the E.A.C. cage turned in sparkling performances. McAuley's job, possibly was a bigger assignment, for the popular young Leaf guardian was called on many times to save as E.A.C. combination plays.

Albert Newsome, one Leaf point, flashed down the left side for the first Maple Leaf goal. Newsome was a brilliant effort as he worked smartly in on Bliefgen and then potshed off the goal with smooth precision.

Young McAra, Leaf rookie from juvenile ranks, slapped in Harper Douglas' shot for the second Leaf goal which put the Allard-coached squad two up.

A penalty to Jack McGill aroused the lean E.A.C. centre to greater efforts. Handsome Jack had only been on the ice a few seconds when he banged in E.A.C.'s first tally. He took big Bruce MacKay's pass, Stickhandled up somewhat, McGill centred over to Jack Simpson for the equalizer a few minutes before the frame ended.

Elmer Kreller shadowed the way through for a neat solo effort as E.A.C.'s took the lead, but three fighting Leafs squirted the count within 30 seconds as Newsome sifted through again as he snapped home Irwin's pass.

There was much dispute about Leafs' first goal in the third. It resulted in a change in goal judges but the goal was allowed and Newsome sent the Leafs out in front on Haire's pass.

At three-quarters of the way Mac-Kay zipped through for a great shot as he picked up a double pass from McGill and Simpson and then bet Ken "Beans" Reardon soared through for a solo that sent E.A.C.'s out in front.

Seventy-four seconds remained when Joe Dutchak rapped in Leafs' equalizer and that ended the scoring at five goals each.

Like Mary's little lamb, Marvin Comstock of Cleveland is endowed with a spirit of adventure. Suffering from a slight touch of insomnia the other night, he strode out the door and down the street for a night-cap turn around the block, without his parents' knowledge or consent. Half an hour later he was picked up in this condition by adults who had more qualms about the cool night air than did Marvin.

France, Too, Has Underwater Fighters

The submarine is one department of naval warfare where teamwork is of the most vital importance. Every man has his specific job and very little space to do it in. There must be no slips, for one brief moment of negligence might mean the death of the entire crew. The above series of photographs were made aboard the French submarine Vengeur. They are the most recent naval pictures permitted by the French navy and give the layman a graphic idea of the fighting technique of an underwater warship. Although not publicized like German U-boats the French submarines are regarded by naval experts as among the world's finest. The brains of the submarine is the man at the periscope who navigates her and gets her in position to deliver the most telling blows. The commander of the Vengeur is shown, top right, at the eyepiece of the 'scope, and, top left, is what he sees. The crossed lines in the centre are brought to bear on the spot he wishes to hit on the target. The ladder-like lines at the right give him the range. When the sub is in the position for firing, the commander transmits his orders electrically to the control room, left centre, from where the orders are relayed to the torpedo room, right centre, where a "fish" is shown being loaded into its tube. With the torpedo in its tube and the port slammed shut, a sailor is shown, bottom left, "dogging" the door in place. All is set now for the word "Fire," and here is the man who sends the deadly missile on its mission of death, bottom right. He has no idea of his target, his is not to ask questions but simply to obey his commands. A torpedo does its greatest damage when it explodes about 10 feet below the waterline of the target.

The World of Yesterday

To the dreary dirge of rain drumming on closed and deserted pavilions, the New York World's Fair—"World of Tomorrow"—passed into the limbo of yesterdays. Trylon and Perisphere stand lonely guard, at left, as one of the cows in a dairy exhibit, carefully raincoated, leaves for home pastures. At right, ennui overtakes Chiquita as the clock ticks round to time for her last performance with the Crystal Lassies.

British Tanks In Action On Western Front

LOYALTY IS REAFFIRMED BY PREMIER

Scores Speaker Who Questions His Sincerity To Empire

Pointing out that he was "a born Canadian," that "I know no other country," that "I came from no other land" and that "this is my own, my native land," Premier William Aberhart, in addressing the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference at the Strand theatre Sunday night, reaffirmed his loyalty to the British Empire.

He made his statement in reference to a report of a meeting held here last week. The Premier said: "I read last week in the paper where a prominent citizen of our city, a leader in one of the churches, was sure that I was not sincere in my attitude to the British Empire."

While the Premier did not mention the "prominent citizen," D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, in an address last week questioned sincerity of the war policy of the present provincial government.

JUDGE NOT

"When you are truly happy you are not super-critical and fault-finding," the Premier said. Later he said that "I always feel sorry for any one who assumes the role of a critic of his fellows. The Saviour told us 'judge not lest we be judged.'"

The Premier pointed out that the service was sponsored by the Rosslind Social Credit Group and that the message from the group for the service was "Be Happy."

He announced that next week's service would be sponsored by a Bashaw friend.

Dealing with the message "Be Happy," the Premier declared that "it speaks of happiness we all want. It is true that most of us do seek happiness, but how few there are who find it." He said that "the trouble is too many people look in the wrong place for happiness. Some people think if they can open the door of wealth they will find happiness."

The premier announced that the annual convention and election of officers of the Camrose Constituency Social Credit Association will be held at Grange Hall, Camrose at 1 p.m., Nov. 28.

A public mass meeting will be held at 8 p.m. It is expected the Premier Aberhart and one cabinet minister will attend.

WETASKIWIN MEET

He announced that an illustrated lecture on the provincial government interim program and the treasury branches, will be given at the U.F.A. hall, Wetaskiwin, at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 23, with Floyd M. Baker, M.L.A. for Clover Bar, as the speaker.

Announcement also was made that the Sedgewick enlarged constituency will hold its annual convention at Killam on Nov. 27, at 1 p.m. A public meeting will be held at 8 p.m.

The Premier gave the sixth in his series of studies on the British Coat-of-Arms, entitling it The Order of the Garter of 'Honi Soit qui mal y Pense.'

"It is a well-known fact that in every declaration of truth, there is to be found a verifying assertion which declared the reliability and dependability of all its detail so that the hearers may be convinced and thus freed from skepticism and doubt," said the premier.

Later the Premier said that "The Coat-of-Arms declares its message of cheer and hope to the British people. Then the Garter around the shield certifies to the reliability of the messages of the emblem, Honi soit qui mal y pense, that is shame be to him who thinks slightingly or ill of these things.

"The term coat-of-arms is a vulgar or street name, which has been applied to this emblem, because of the place on which it was worn most frequently. The correct name for the whole emblazonment is 'The Achievement' or 'Our Achievement.'

"This suggests progress and British accomplishment. The details connected with The Achievement are records of advancement and success in both the spiritual and the material realms.

"We call your attention therefore tonight to the Garter which you can see buckled around the outside of the shield of David, the central point of the emblem.

PRINTED MOTTO

"Upon the Garter you can see the first and the last two words of the printed motto, 'Honi' and 'y pense'.

"The motto and the Garter with its significance came into existence during the reign of Edward III, King of England. It seems that he and a number of knights and their ladies were attending a celebration in France. They were dancing. King Edward had as his partner the Countess of Salisbury. It was just at the close of the dance when as they were going to their seats the Countess gave an exclamation of distress and looked towards the floor.

The King looked also to see what was the matter and there lay her garter unbuckled on the floor. The King gallantly picked it up. Whereupon a suppressed merriment rippled over the crowds. He addressed the lady who blushed shamefacedly and immediately the King reproved the merriment and said 'honi soit qui mal y pense' or 'shame be to him who thinks ill of these things.' Shortly after this, the Order of the Garter was instituted as a support of royalty in maintaining the dignity and in keeping inviolate the ordinary institutions and functions of the best principles and traditions of our land.

Concluding his study, the Premier declared "Let us remember that the

Turks Hold Key To Red-Nazi Oil Route

Dardanelles Loaded With Political Dynamite

Thomas J. B. Wenner, head of the Political Science department of Cleveland College, here gives a first-hand account of the importance of the Black Sea region in the war situation today. Professor Wenner recently returned from a tour of modern Turkey and western Russia, areas brought into the news by breakdown of Turkish-Soviet negotiations and signing of an alliance between Turkey, Great Britain and France.—EDITOR.

BY THOMAS J. B. WENNER
Written for the Edmonton Bulletin

THE situation along the historic waterways connecting the Black Sea to the Mediterranean is loaded with dynamite.

To most people on the American continent today, the Republic of Turkey—which holds the key to the route—stands for Armenian atrocities, a semi-oriental civilization, mosques, minarets and Mohammedanism. To most young Turks, and to anyone who has visited the country in the past few months as I have, Turkey today denotes none of these things.

Turkey, now a modern nation minus the fez and the harem of the "Eastern" existence, today stands tied to the west. It is now committed to assist Britain and France if the latter becomes involved in any war in the eastern Mediterranean resulting from hostile aggression by a European power.

The Turks also are bound to assist their new allies in case England and France go to the assistance of Rumania or Greece, or both. France and Britain have agreed to assist the Ottoman in case any European power commits aggression against the Turks, or if Turkey becomes involved in war in the eastern Mediterranean as a consequence of an act of aggression by a European power.

Crux of the matter is Turkey's fear of the Soviet bear at the Bosporus, possible Soviet aggression against Bessarabia, in Rumania, and what the statesmen of Ankara believe may be Il Duce's designs in the eastern Mediterranean.

BULGARIA STANDS ON THE FLANK

The Turkish high command must also protect the western flank against possible attack from Bulgaria, which is covetous of territory in Thrace formerly allotted to Greece but later ceded to the Turkish republic during the Ataturk regime.

Alone, Bulgaria is hardly in a position from either an economic or military standpoint to engage a re-militarized Turkey. But a disgruntled Bulgaria in concert with Russo-German design in the Balkans might make plenty of trouble for the Ottomans.

Most serious price for an alliance with England and France is the possibility that Ankara may too greatly have offended the powers that be in the Kremlin.

It is feared in Turkish diplomatic circles that Russia may have designs on Rumanian territory, which might be the signal for both the Nazis and the Bulgars to co-operate militarily in a revision of the Balkan status quo.

Besides, Russia has no intention of seeing Soviet commerce jeopardized in the Black Sea, or of being bottled up at the Straits in case the western allies decide to bring pressure on the German rear by transporting war materials and troops through Rumania.

Across the Caucasus from the great Baku oil fields of Russia to Batum on the Black Sea run oil pipe lines allowing Soviet oil egress by water routes to Constanza, in Rumania, as well as to Sebastopol and Odessa in southern Russia.

From the latter, overland routes can transport this oil through Kiev and Russian Poland to Nazi Germany. Strategic railways also run from Baku northward to Grozny and thence by pipe line to Tuapsa on the Black Sea.

Any threat to these sea routes must be viewed seriously both by Moscow and Berlin.

MAN THREATEN SOVIET TRADE

Once inside the narrows of the Bosporus, British and French men-of-war might seriously throttle Soviet commerce in the Black Sea, and, in case of Soviet aggression against Rumania, prevent the landing of Soviet troops at the great port of Constanza. When I crossed the Black Sea, the Russian fleet was at anchor in Sebastopol harbor, which was closed to foreigners. There it is based as a threat to any hostile threat north of the Dardanelles, and as a defense against any attempt to cut the oil routes across the Black Sea.

Russia would welcome commitments from the Turks that in event the European war spreads into eastern Europe, English and French vessels would be denied passage through the Dardenelles and the Bosporus. The Turks have tried to straddle this issue as best they can.

A protocol is included in the recent pact providing that the treaty's obligations cannot compel Turkey to take action having as its effect or involving as its consequence hostilities against the Soviet Union.

So long as Russia is not the aggressor against Rumania, England and France would seem to be the winners in the deal.

Otherwise, this protocol provides a wide loophole for the Turks to crawl out of, since any assistance tendered Rumania in case of Soviet aggression would immediately call for decision at Ankara as to whether passage of English and French warships through the Straits constitutes an unneutral act against the U.S.S.R. calculated to open old war wounds between the Ottomans and the Slavs.

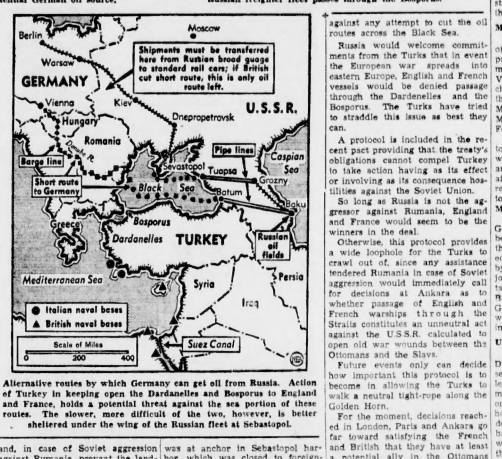

Future events only can decide how important this protocol is to become in allowing the Turks to walk a neutral tight-rope along the Golden Horn.

For the moment, decisions reached in London, Paris and Ankara go far toward satisfying the French and British that they have at least a potential ally in the Ottomans for maintaining the status quo in the Balkans and eastern Mediterranean.

Russian freighter fleet passes through the Bosporus.

Alternative routes by which Germany can get oil from Russia. Action of Turkey in keeping open the Dardanelles and Bosporus to England and France, holds a potential threat against the sea portion of these routes. The slower, more difficult of the two, however, is better sheltered under the wing of the Russian fleet at Sebastopol.

CANADA PROUD TO FIGHT FOR ALLIED CAUSE

Maj.-Gen. Griesbach Addresses Fusiliers—Manion Is Honor Guest

Canada will not be satisfied with merely supplying the Mother Country and her allies with "goods at a price," declared Maj.-Gen. Hon. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., when addressing the officers of the Edmonton Fusiliers (M.G.) at a mess dinner in the Edmonton Club Saturday night.

"This is not good enough," said the General. "When this war is over and justice and decency have prevailed, the people of this great Dominion will want to remember with pride and satisfaction that Canada stood side by side with the Allies, as in the years 1914-1918, in equal sacrifice in blood, should such be necessary, in upholding and defending the great principles for which the people of this country stand, in common with the rest of the democratic world."

MANION IS GUEST

Lt.-Col. Herbert Davies, E.D., officer commanding the regiment, presided, with Lt.-Col. H. C. L. Gillman, V.D., mess president, and Capt. Victor Sims, vice-president, in charge of toasts. Honored guest of the evening was Capt. R. J. Manion, M.C. (who also is leader of His Majesty's loyal opposition in the Federal parliament).

Toasts were given to His Majesty; to the 1st Batt. Munster Fusiliers, with which the Edmonton Fusiliers are affiliated, and which regiment after once disbanding, has now been reorganized in Liverpool, Eng.; and to the guest of the evening, Capt. Manion.

Introducing Dr. Manion, Col. Gillman said the distinguished guest, being unable to find a place with the Canadian division in 1914, offered his services and was accepted by the French Red Cross. Later he joined the Canadians and was attached as medical officer to the 21st Battalion, with which unit Col. Gillman also served. Capt. Manion won his Military Cross while serving with the "21st."

UPHOLD PRINCIPLES

Attending in a private capacity, Dr. Manion confined his remarks to service reminiscences of a more or less humorous nature, although in more serious vein he said Canada once again is "going all out to uphold the principles upon which the democratic form of government is based," and which "stand out in this war even more prominently than in the first Great War, as the cause for which so many sacrifices are willingly made to defend."

After dinner the officers adjourned to their quarters in the Victoria armories, where music rounded out the evening.

Citizen's Son Is Injured Victim Of Torpedoed Warship

Listed among the missing when H.M.S. Courageous was torpedoed by a German submarine, Petty Officer Robert Brownlow, son of Mrs. Robert Brownlow, 10058 118 avenue, has recently been released from hospital in England, where he was treated for minor injuries. Petty Officer Brownlow joined the navy at 15 and has been a sailor for 17 years. He has four years more before retirement. He is on leave and said he expects to be assigned to another ship soon.

More than 18,000,000 persons attend the greyhound racing tracks of England annually.

Australia Now Plans to Raise Second Overseas Force of 20,000 Men

LONDON, Nov. 20.—W. Macmahon Ball, Melbourne lecturer, in a special broadcast Saturday by the British Broadcasting Corporation, said a second Australian imperial force of 20,000 is being enlisted and will be sent overseas when training is completed.

A militia numbering 80,000 men is being given four months' training, Mr. Ball said.

OTHER MEASURES

1—An order for war planes in United States has been doubled.

2—A numbered ships have been equipped and manned as armed merchant vessels.

3—Personnel of the Royal Australian Navy has been doubled since the outbreak of war, and 4—Defence guns have been mounted on more than 60 merchant ships as they are in of Australian ports.

The Commonwealth has agreed to supply the United Kingdom with essential goods valued at £100,000,000 (about $447,000,000) annually. The British government is buying the whole of Australia's wool clip, all her surplus meat and dairy produce, sugar, canned and dried fruits and large quantities of metals.

MEN EAGER TO ENLIST

There has been talk of a general election soon, the broadcaster said, but in any case all three parties have agreed Australia must put her whole national effort into the war.

Mr. Ball described a scene in Melbourne after the declaration of war, and that with all the excitement there was no sign of "belligerent pleasure."

He told how young men were eager to enlist and said it would have been easy in those first weeks of the war to have stirred Australian patriotism into "frothy turbulence." To plunge into hatred of the German people or induce in theatrical displays of belligerence however, was not to be patriotic but to give Hitlerism a victory over Australian minds, he said.

Heraldic Garter calls for the sincere loyalty to and the hearty support of our King and of one another in time. Nothing must interfere with these qualities."

PROPHETIC STUDIES

Continuing his prophetic studies in the light of present day events, the Premier dealt with Religious Conditions of Last Days.

The Premier was assisted in the service by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry; Orvis A. Kennedy, M.P., for East Edmonton, Gordon Geldart, toner and the Social Credit band under the baton of R. A. Bullock.

Yukon Southern Increases Trips For North Areas

Yukon Southern's Barkley-Grow airliners are working full time these days and will be operating on a thrice-weekly schedule from Whitehorse for the next few weeks in order to meet the demand for transportation from the Yukon and Alaskan mines to Edmonton, Vancouver and the United States.

To cope with the increase in traffic, Barney Phillips, vice-president in charge of traffic, flew north to Whitehorse Sunday with President Grant McConachie. Grant was southbound from Whitehorse with eight miners Monday morning. He will be met by Pilots Sheldon Luck and Ted Field at Fort St. John, where Luck will fly south to Vancouver with part of the load, and Field south to Edmonton with the rest.

Red Cross Pays No Large Wages Dick Declares

Comforting and aiding Allied troops is the cause to which every cent collected from the public by the Canadian Red Cross Society is donated, declared W. J. Dick, northern Alberta director of the drive, at the week-end. There are no high-salaried officials employed, he said, and the only paid worker in the Edmonton office is a trained secretary getting $100 a month.

The Red Cross office itself is donated free and so is the heat, telephone and light used in the office, said Mr. Dick.

A "contact man" has been organizing workers in rural communities on a salary of $50 a week, but even that job will expire in a week or two, Mr. Dick reported.

Mr. Dick stressed that the expenses of the campaign are being paid out of the Red Cross' general administrations fund, not out of money collected in the drive.

North Freighting

Water transport facilities serving the northward carried 77,000 tons during the summer of 1939, or 3,000 tons less than the all-time high reached in 1938, a recent survey discloses. Mackenzie River Transport division of the Hudson's Bay Company carried 15,518 tons; Northern Transportation Company, 9,000 tons and other companies, 3,000 tons. Business was much better than had been expected in view of the unsettled condition of international affairs last summer.

TROOPS BUSY ON CLEANING OVER WEEKEND

Divine Service and Garrison Concert Feature Activities

General house-cleaning operations formed the major Edmonton Garrison activity over the week-end, according to Lieut.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., Garrison Commandant. Huts were swept and scrubbed, blankets were shaken and cleaned, equipment was "all shined up" and the encampment in general was put in "apple pie" order.

On Sunday the Garrison paraded for divine service at the Prince of Wales Armory, with Roman Catholic soldiers being declared for a service at Sacred Heart church. Band of the Edmonton Regiment assisted in the service.

As many men as could be spared from garrison fatigue and other duties were given passes.

Many attended the final performance at the Empire theatre Saturday night of the vaudeville entertainment, "Shells-a-Poppin', which was staged by the Garrison Entertainment Board to provide recreational facilities for the troops at the Garrison.

Work on construction of a skating rink is proceeding and ground has been levelled, some stakes driven in and sideboards put up.

Medical boards sat throughout Sunday in an effort to expedite reboarding of men, so that their clinical sheets could be studied with a view to declaring effects of garrison life on the men. X-raying of chests of men also is proceeding.

Col. Brown said that intensive training will be carried out this week.

As more new battle dress uniforms are received they will be issued to the troops.

First Physical Clue To Nature of Insanity Is Seen In Experiment

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—An experiment giving the first physical clue to the nature of insanity, indicating its seat is in the ends of nerves, was announced to the American Philosophical Society Saturday.

These nerve ends are of peculiar shape, resembling tendrils of plants. They grow, in clusters, out of the ends of nerve fibres, like slender threads unravelled from the end of a thick string.

VIRGINIAN DISCOVERER

They reach out separately, like parallel bridges, to connect with the neighboring nerve fibre. The novel experiment which shows their possible connection with insanity was reported by Dr. Carl Speidel, professor of anatomy at the University of Virginia.

He discovered how these endings are affected by metrazol, which, along with insulin, is used in the new shock treatment that has cured many hundreds of human mental cases. Metrazol is a synthetic chemical derived from camphor. Like insulin in overdoses, it throws the patient into coma and convulsions close to death.

Dr. Speidel gave the metrazol to tadpoles, whose tails are so transparent the nerves are visible. These nerves are built on the human plan.

The chemical caused prompt damage to the tadpole nerves. This included destruction of the tendril-like nerve endings. That the metrazol was probably acting as it does in humans was partly confirmed by evidence of muscular convulsions in the tadpoles.

If the tadpols metrazol was stopped in time, new endings grew from the nerves and formed new bridges. The result was a realignment of nerve channels.

This re-routing of nerve channels is a physical confirmation of the brain geography explanation of insanity given by the discoverer of the shock treatment, Dr. Manfred Sakel.

From watching the recoveries of nearly 1,000 shock-treated persons, he concluded mental trouble is probably due to confusion in the geography of the countless nerve channels in the grey matter of the brain.

The shock, he said, seems to temporarily extinguish these channels. Afterward, new connections are established, and often the new channels are in a less confused arrangement, with the result sanity reappears.

Order Enough Coal For Winter

Man's favorite habit is to WAIT until winter has jumped upon him and THEN place his order for a load of coal. Coal dealers everywhere are under pressure to fill orders as soon as possible. There's bound to be a delay and perhaps YOUR home will pass through a "cold" period. Why not turn to heading 39 "Coal and Wood" and place your order with a reliable dealer . . . it's a good suggestion.

Dorothy Dix Says:

The most difficult problem for young people to solve is whether they are in love or not. They virtually spend their time taking their temperatures and with their fingers on their pulses trying to count their heartbeats, and yet despite their every effort to arrive at the state of their affections they cannot tell whether what ails them is a fatal case of the grand passion, or just a slight attack of passing fancy that will all be over in a day or two.

The thing that keeps boys and girls all hot and bothered is not what some member of the opposite sex is thinking about them, but what they themselves think about the party of the other part.

The world is full of old maids and old bachelors who never married because they waited for some emotional experience that could never possibly come to one of their temperament, or who wasted the years waiting for some glamour girl or dreamy Romeo to come riding down their street and bear them off to some romantic heaven of connubial bliss.

Perhaps there are people who are shot down suddenly by love as by a bolt out of the blue, but these instances are rare, and statistics show that of the love-at-first-sight marriages not more than one-half of one per cent endure.

We must love even as we are built, but this homespun love will still be wearing well and standing the strain of marriage long after the pink children romance is rags and tatters.

Broader Pleads Not Guilty To Second Indictment

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. — Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in America, pleaded not guilty today to a second federal indictment charging him with making false statements in order to obtain a passport.

He had pleaded not guilty to an earlier indictment last month and has been at liberty under $7,000 bail. His bail on the second indictment, returned last Friday, was continued and trial was set for Dec. 4.

FOUR MOUNTIES GIVEN RANK OF SUB-INSPECTOR

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters here announced today that Staff Sergeant Hyin Williams of Saskatoon, Sergeant R. S. S. Wilson of Vancouver, Sergeant J. F. Thrasher of Moosejaw, Man., and Sergeant E. Perlson, Yellowknife, N.W.T., have been promoted to the rank of sub-inspector, effective Nov. 1.

Sub-Inspector Williams, formerly a member of the Saskatchewan provincial police, was in charge of the orderlies to the King and Queen during the Royal Tour this summer. Sub-Inspector Wilson has more than 11 years of service and has been very successful in narcotic drug and counterfeiting investigations in British Columbia.

Sub-Inspector Thrasher is a graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and the University of Manitoba where he won the degree of bachelor of laws.

Sub-Inspector Perlson graduated from R.M.C., University of Alberta and McGill University. He received his bachelor of laws degree from Alberta and Bachelor of science from McGill.

Members of the R.C.M.P. in Edmonton were pleased to learn of the promotion of Sgt. E. Perlson to the rank of sub-inspector. Sgt. Perlson served with the Edmonton detachment for many years prior to being transferred to Yellowknife. While a member of the force here, he took a law course at the University of Alberta. He was also stationed at Drumheller and at Calgary.

Work Will Commence On Killing Of Big Herd At Wainwright

CALGARY, Nov. 20—From 700 to 800 elk have been killed during the past two weeks as the work of killing off the animals in the Wainwright national buffalo park proceeds apace.

The last big buffalo kill of the west will commence on Wednesday when the task of slaying some 3,000 of those former monarchs of the prairies gets under way.

PURSHELL DOES KILLING

All animals in the big park in north-eastern Alberta are being killed off on orders issued by the Dominion government. The name of Sam Purshell will go down as the greatest buffalo hunter of all time, for when the task of killing the 3,000 buffalo in Wainwright national buffalo park is completed, Sam Purshell will have shot a total of 21,000 buffalo.

Hunter Purshell has been the federal government's ace sharpshooter at the Buffalo park for the past 15 years and during that time has shot about 18,000, according to Park Superintendent A. G. Smith, who expects he will add another 3,000 buffalo to his bag before the end of the year.

Superintendent Smith, speaking to a newspaperman by telephone, stated Sunday shooting of elk is being done by two gangs.

ELK ARE HUNTED

There are three park wardens in each gang and they travel through the park in auto trucks. Each gang is followed by a pick-up auto truck which conveys the slaughtered animals to the park abattoir where the meat is dressed. The elk must be hunted for as it is impossible to round them up.

Ten carloads of elk meat have been shipped to Indian reserves in Saskatchewan and Alberta and another car will leave Monday for Round Lake reserve near Broadview, Saskatchewan. Elk has been shipped to Blood Indian reserves and to reserves at Hobbema and Cardston in Alberta.

The buffalo round-up will be commenced Wednesday and will continue until the end of the year. Small herds of buffalo will be driven to enclosures near the abattoir where they will be killed by crew veteran marksman Sam Purshell.

SHIPPED TO EDMONTON

The Buffalo meat will be dressed and shipped to the Canada Packers, Ltd., Edmonton, the firm which has contracted to purchase all buffalo meat and buffalo hides from the federal government.

When the buffalo have been wiped out the hunters will commence their task of killing off the elk, moose and other game animals in the park.

New Phase of War Seen In Sinking of Four Ships By Nazi Mines or Subs Over Weekend

NEW BLACKOUT STROLL MAKES DANCING HIT

British United Press

LONDON, Nov. 20—The war has produced a new dance called the Blackout Stroll. It starts like the Lambeth Walk and then girls are blacked out and everybody changes partners. The idea, a dancing master said today, is to give shy girls a chance to become acquainted with handsome men in uniform.

U.S. FARMERS ARE ASKED TO RESTORE SOIL

Greater Protection From Wind, Water Erosion Is Government Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The United States agriculture department is revamping its farm-aid program for 1940 to shift emphasis from crop production control to measures designed to assure greater protection of the country's soil resources from wind and water erosion.

Recent surveys show, officials said, America's farming land is wearing out faster than it is being restored because farmers as a whole are not using cultivation practices which would prevent soil wastage.

Under tentative regulations drafted by the agricultural administration, farmers will be asked to devote more attention and efforts to conservation measures if they want to share the $775,000,000 benefit payment fund.

They will be asked to increase their plantings of legumes and other soil-building crops, to return more land to grass and pastures, particularly land subject to erosion and unsuited for cultivation. Special efforts will be made to prevent over-stocking and over-grazing of pastureland.

GERMAN PLANE BROUGHT DOWN IN NETHERLANDS

ROERMOND, The Netherlands, Nov. 20—A German military plane, apparently disabled by anti-aircraft guns, crashed in a meadow near here today, killing the pilot who was the sole occupant.

This was the third incident in three days in which the Dutch engaged German aircraft flying over The Netherlands.

LONDON, Nov. 20—An unidentified plane flew over Essex, southern Kent and the outskirts of London today trailed by anti-aircraft fire. No air raid warnings were sounded.

Flying over the southeast coast at a great height, the plane was greeted by steady fire.

British chasers streaked in pursuit as the craft sped eastward.

In one town on the coast crowds gathered in the street to watch the firing against the plane.

FLOOD WATERS ARE RECEDING NEAR ZEBALLOS

ZEBALLOS, B.C., Nov. 20—Conditions returned to normal in the nearby Privateer Flats mining settlement today as absence of rain for 24 hours reduced the level of the flood-swollen Zeballos river.

Most of the 10 families, who either were driven out of their homes by high water last week or left as a precautionary measure, have moved back to the community, four miles north of this new town on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Jackie Coogan Is To Wed Again And Will Seek Career

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 20—Jackie Coogan, grown-up child screen star whose Hollywood marriage went on the rocks last summer, says he's going to wed again and try for a career on the New York stage.

He said he would marry Harriet Haddon in New York after a divorce from his first wife, screen actress Betty Grable, becomes final 10 months from now.

Miss Haddon, in pictures three years, now is playing in an ice revue at a New York hotel and met her in Hollywood. She is 21, he 25.

Bennett, chairman of the Society's British Committee, that construction of the No. 1 Canadian base hospital at Taplow is proceeding rapidly. Shipments of Canadian goods will be used to outfit completely the hospital supply stores, Mr. Somerville said.

Marriage Just A Memory And Poor At That

VALPARAISO, Ind., Nov. 20.—A Chicago woman wrote County Clerk Lewis Keller to ask for her marriage license certificate.

She said she was married in 1938 but couldn't remember the man's name nor the exact date.

"It was somewheres during the month of August," she wrote, "and his first name was Eddie."

The clerk couldn't find any record of the license.

By CHARLES NICHOLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Oil-soaked refugees from the sunken Dutch liner Simon Bolivar brought to London Sunday stories of disaster at sea — a disaster which underscored a seemingly new phase of the war.

First dispatches out of London quoted the British admiralty as blaming Nazi mines for sinking of the 8,500-ton liner with the loss of about 140 lives "a further example of German disregard for international law and the dictates of humanity."

SOME BLAME U-BOAT

Among the uninjured but bedraggled survivors reaching London, however, there were some who said they thought a submarine had torpedoed the vessel. One man said two German seaplanes had swooped the ship Saturday morning, a few hours before it blew up.

The impression among passengers that the liner was torpedoed probably was reasonable under the circumstances. But the admiralty explanation fits closely into a pattern of German attack which has been becoming evident during the last week.

In the last war Germany used submarines to distribute mines and it is probable she is doing the same thing again, U-boats being able to penetrate areas where surface minelayers would not dare to go.

Another and rather bizarre method was reported several weeks ago to have been developed by Nazi strategists. According to this report the mines are enclosed in cases and released outside the enemy's territorial waters or ports. The case drifts for several miles, gradually sinking to the bottom. When it comes to rest, the mine is released automatically, floating to the surface to menace enemy vessels.

The theory submarines are laying the missiles is given some support by the fact the unidentified British destroyer sunk last week by a mine was only a few miles from the site of a U-boat attack on the freighter Pozano.

TRIO ESCAPED WAR PRISONERS ARE CAPTURED

Young Germans Are Back In Detention After Brief Freedom

LONDON, Nov. 20—Three young German war prisoners were back in detention last night after a few brief hours of freedom gained when they escaped from an internment camp in eastern Scotland early Saturday.

The three evaded armed guards and strong searchlights, and clambered over a 10-foot wall covered with barbed wire to make their getaway.

What they hoped to do was a mystery to their guards. None spoke English, and their chances of getting away from the country were slim.

Searchers kept watch on nearby ports and the hills and moors of the countryside were combed. The prisoners were members of a freighter crew, listed as Walther Bartels, 17, Gunter Berger, 17, and Rudi Plaita, 19.

The enterprising prisoners stole khaki uniforms from guards who were off duty. In this way they hoped to escape identification.

There are more than 100 German prisoners in the camp.

By-Elections Will Likely Not Produce Contests At Polls

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Five federal by-elections are to be held before parliament meets, but it seemed today the truce in party politics, maintained fairly consistently since the war started, and the likelihood of a general election early next summer, would discourage contests at the polls.

At the moment a contest is promised in only one of the four by-elections scheduled for Dec. 18. That will be in Saskatoon, in the fifth by-election, fixed for Jan. 8 in Prince County, Prince Edward Island. It is expected Hon. J. L. Ralston, finance minister, will be given an acclamation.

Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, and his followers are believed to have decided against engaging in political strife during the early part of Canada's war preparations and no candidates of that party are expected to run in the by-elections.

VACATED BY DEATH

The five seats to be filled were all held by Liberals and all were vacated by death. The by-elections on Dec. 18 are in Kent, Ont., Saskatoon and the two Montreal ridings of St. James and Jacques-Cartier.

Death and resignation have struck deeply into the present parliament since it was elected in October, 1935. There have been 34 vacancies in the House of Commons of which 23 have been caused by death and eight by resignations.

Death took its toll of the senate as well and there are now 12 vacancies leaving a standing of 52 Conservative appointees and 32 appointed by Liberal administrations.

When the by-elections now scheduled have been completed the total since the 1935 general elections will be 38, with three vacancies remaining.

VACANT SEATS

Vacant seats for which no by-elections have yet been fixed are Kindersley, Sask., Bonaventure and Drummond-Arthabaska, in Quebec. It is not expected any further by-elections will be held before next session and probably no more until the general election.

Of the eight vacancies in the House at the present time seven were held by Liberals and one by the Social Credit party.

Standing of the House of Commons is now: Liberals 173; Conservatives 39; Social Credit 15; Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation 7; Independent 2; United Farmers of Ontario-Labor 1; vacant 8.

Calgary Chinese Contribute $360.00 To Red Cross Fund

CALGARY, Nov. 20—Calgary branch of the Chinese Refugees Relief society collected $360.00 in Calgary Sunday, the first day of their campaign to raise funds for the Canadian Red Cross society.

Indian Riot Kills 11 Persons Sunday

SUKKUR, India, Nov. 20—Eleven persons were killed and 23 injured Sunday in a Hindu-Moslem riot reported to have started when a Moslem crowd became angered after arrest of some of their leaders accused of setting fire to Hindu shops. Six of the dead were Moslems and five Hindus.

The low-wing monoplane, special-built Northrop Gamma, equipped with a Wasp motor, used by Lincoln Ellsworth, on his Antarctic expedition in 1935, enabled the expedition to obtain nine miles per gallon of gasoline at a cruising speed of 180 miles an hour.

FINNS CHARGED WITH WARLIKE BORDER MOVES

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—Finland was charged in new Soviet press attacks Sunday with sending reinforcements to the Russian frontier which the Finns have refused to revise in accord with Soviet proposals.

A dispatch from Helsingfors to the Communist party newspaper Pravda said "Finnish troops are marching everywhere on the eastern frontier.

"There are nightly blackouts. But on the Soviet side everything is quite normal."

Finnish military and "ruling classes" were accused by the dispatch of "increasing preparations for war" against desires of the Finnish masses.

Pravda said the Finns were being taught the slogan "one Finn is worth 10 Muscovites."

GREAT BRITAIN IS ATTACKED BY ITALIAN PAPER

ROME, Nov. 20—Roberto Farinacci, Regime Fascista of Cremona launched an attack on Great Britain and France as Italy's enemies Saturday, the fourth "anniversary" of sanctions against Italy for her Ethiopian venture.

The extremist editor took occasion to praise Germany warmly for its attitude toward Italy while other countries were enforcing sanctions, and declared that "since then, the abyss between nations—between two ways of life, between youthful peoples and old conservatives, between the new regime of authoritarian states and the international Jewish-Masonic-Democratic regime—has grown ever wider."

In the past four years Britain and France have steadily increased their hostility toward Italy, he asserted.

GERMAN PLANE RETURNS SHOTS OF DUTCH CRAFT

THE HAGUE, Nov. 20.—Planes of Germany and the Netherlands exchanged shots Sunday over Netherlands' territory a second time in two days.

The encounter occurred over the island of Schiermonnikoog, off the north coast of Holland, when pursuit planes of this nation attempted to drive off a German plane flying at a low altitude.

The German plane returned the fire of the Netherlands' craft and, flying to the east, disappeared in clouds. Apparently neither was damaged.

The government announced Saturday it had protested to Germany after two German flying boats appeared over Netherlands' territory and one fired at defence aircraft which attacked it.

POLISH NAVAL DETACHMENT IN BRITISH FLEET

LONDON, Nov. 20—An agreement incorporating a Polish naval detachment in the British fleet until the end of the war was signed here Saturday by Ambassador Edward Raczynski of vanished Poland and Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary at the foreign office.

One or two Polish naval officers are known to be operating with the Royal Navy.

Dr. James Naismith, Canadian Inventor Of Basketball, Ill

LAWRENCE, Kas., Nov. 20—Dr. James Naismith, 78, Canadian inventor of basketball, rallied today after a night in which friends feared for his life.

His physician termed his condition "somewhat improved and not particularly critical early today." His illness had been termed critical after a cerebral hemorrhage last night.

Dr. Naismith has visited Edmonton on several occasions, the guest of Coach Percy Page and the Commercial Grads.

Fire Kills Two

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 20.—Two men were killed today when fire swept the three-story Saint Nicholas hotel here. The two, trapped on upper floors, were Warren Black, 76-year-old retired railroad conductor, and J. W. Jewell, about 60, both of Terre Haute.

Four Apple Ambassadors

Will Be in EATON'S Fruit Section From 2:30 Until 3:30 Tuesday!

Here's something of unusual interest—four girls who are experts at it will demonstrate the packing of apples in EATON'S Fruit Section Tuesday afternoon from 2:30 until 3:30 o'clock. These girls come from various points in the Okanagan Valley . . . one of the four is Mrs. Isobel Stillingfleet, British Empire apple packing champion. Don't forget the time—2:30 until 3:30 Tuesday—and the place, EATON'S Fruit Section.
